GENERAL NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Philip Forgery Resumed.

[illegible], Nov. 4.—The Philip examination was resumed to-day. Philip was in court but soon left. [illegible] testified that he received the Morey letter [illegible] the mail Oct. 18th and was about to destroy [illegible] seeing it was a peculiar one, examined it with [illegible] of Truth and not being prepared to publish [illegible] the national democratic committee [illegible] and Barnum and others examined it [illegible] then published it. Philip never saw it [illegible] appeared in the fac simile. He knew there [illegible] but didn't know what it was. After [illegible] examined the letter half an hour he pro[illegible] genuine and returned it to witness. He [illegible] letter after Davenport's visit to his sister['s] keeping. Witness had great difficulty in [illegible] to declare it was genuine. [illegible] how many fac similes were distributed. [illegible] is a stock corporation organized under [illegible] laws. Philip is not a stockholder, but [illegible] and Hummel are. Witness controls the [illegible] of it. Recess. [illegible] L. F. Post, one of the editors of the [illegible] testified that Philip did not see the Morey letter [illegible] the publication of the fac simile.

Missionary Appropriations.

[illegible], Nov. 4.—The Methodist Episcopal [illegible] missions to-day appropriated $10,868 for work in Central China; $2000 for North [illegible] and $3000 for the establishment of missions [illegible] China.

Garfield and the Catholics.

[illegible], Nov. 4.—The Catholics presented Garfield a gold-headed cane voted him at the ca[illegible]. He said in response:

"[illegible] offered it as a significant symbol. I accept it with the meaning you have given it. The [illegible] gold may not unfitly represent the true and [illegible] of our national credit, based upon the [illegible] the strength and stability [illegible] of the wood that supports it, the strength [illegible] of our institutions. I believe it is [illegible] patriarch Jacob worshipped leaning on the [illegible]. Our institutions are safe so long as [illegible] government are found leaning upon [illegible] solid worth and of public and private [illegible]. I accept this all the more gladly because it [illegible] one of the lines that divide us religiously. [illegible] in our country a man may adopt whatever he chooses, or no religion if he prefers; [illegible] of the people is left to voluntary choice [illegible] the control of human law."

Rev. J. Hyatt Smith.

[illegible], Nov. 4.—Rev. J. Hyatt Smith, who [illegible] candidate for congress in the third Brooklyn [illegible], said to-day: "Some of the republican [illegible] referred unkindly to my political status. [illegible] to answer personally these attacks, [illegible] those who wish any information on that [illegible] my political godfather and lifelong friend, [illegible]. I shall consider myself a republi[illegible] independent republican, but when voting on [illegible] shall not look to see what may be its party [illegible] vote upon it according to my best [illegible] a patriot." Mr. Smith is a hard money [illegible] favors a strong protective tariff.

Another Railroad War.

[illegible], Nov. 4.—Another break in southwestern [illegible] occurred to-day, all roads making [illegible] from Kansas City to Chicago $4 80; former [illegible]. There is a probability that through rates [illegible] principal points in Illinois, Missouri, [illegible] will shortly be reduced considerably. [illegible] meeting, which was to have adjusted all [illegible], was postponed till Monday.

Base Ball.

[illegible], O., Nov. 4.—Nolan, pitcher of the [illegible] club, and Clapp, catcher of the Cincinnati [illegible], signed with the Cleveland base [illegible] next year, as change pitcher and catcher [illegible] of the 1880 team was retained.

President Hayes in Cleveland.

[illegible], Nov. 5.—President Hayes and wife [illegible] in Fremont to-day and came to [illegible] special train. Mrs. Hayes remained [illegible] of Mrs. Austin, a relative. The president [illegible] in the afternoon [illegible] several hours visiting Gen. Garfield. [illegible] President Hayes returned to Cleveland [illegible] invited to participate in a republican [illegible]. He reviewed the torchlight procession [illegible] made a speech congratulating the people [illegible] victory which was decisive. He said the [illegible] part of our system is the inadequate provision [illegible] declaration of the result of a presidential [illegible]. He paid a glowing tribute to Garfield, be[illegible] can feel assured that in the wise and firm administration of Garfield our country is to obtain [illegible] prosperity not surpassed in any [illegible] on the face of the globe. Under his broad [illegible] and patriotic administration every section of this country will be fairly and justly dealt [illegible] to the mistaken men of the south: [illegible] be treated precisely as citizens of my own [illegible] are to be treated. All that we ask of [illegible] you shall faithfully observe the constitution as it now is. Extending to every state its [illegible], he requires of them that they shall [illegible] every citizen his individual rights. With [illegible] harmony restored throughout the [illegible] all classes, I say again that the [illegible] of victory gained on Tuesday by you are [illegible] and equally to the republican and to [illegible], and to southern men and to northern [illegible] whoever is a citizen of the United [illegible]. I thank you for your hearing. President [illegible] was followed by Hon. Stanley Matthews, after [illegible] the crowd dispersed.

Found Guilty.

[illegible], Nov. 4.—The jury in the case of James [illegible], who has been on trial for two days [illegible] the killing of his wife last March, re[illegible] verdict of guilty this morning. Sentence [illegible]

WASHINGTON CITY.

Mahone's Position.

[illegible] Mahone, of Virginia, [illegible] telegraphed to this city that he [illegible] into any caucus with the democrats, [illegible] on all public matters according to the [illegible] his judgment. It is claimed here that he [illegible] generally act with the republicans.

Two Congressmen Left.

[illegible], Nov. [illegible] received at the [illegible] secretary of the senate to-day, states [illegible] only Casey Young of Memphis, but [illegible] of the 9th Tennessee district, have [illegible]. Atkins is chairman of the house [illegible] appropriations.

Balance of Power.

[illegible] (Ind.) estimates the republican [illegible] over all opposition in the next house from [illegible], but considers it not impossible that, [illegible] smoke clears away, the independents may [illegible] hold the balance of power.

Population of the Globe.

[From the London Spectator.]

[illegible] and Prof. Wagner, German geographers of standing, who have devoted much [illegible] statistics of population, have [illegible] a new edition of their calculations, [illegible] after great labor, at results which [illegible] materially the [illegible] popularly current in Great Britain; [illegible],000; Asia, 833,704,000; Africa, [illegible]; America, 95,495,500; Australia [illegible], 4,031,000; polar regions, 82,000; [illegible] 1,455,923,500. The calculation for [illegible] must be substantially accurate, [illegible] than the usual one; but even [illegible] of humanity, 10 in 14 [illegible] dwells in Asia and Africa, a fact [illegible] will do well to remember. Stonewall Jackson's Sister.

[illegible] Arnold, the sole-surviving sister of [illegible] Jackson, now lives at Buckhannon, [illegible]. She was throughout the [illegible] unionist, although every member [illegible] family except one—a young nephew—[illegible] secessionist. For her brother she en[illegible] the reverence of an undying love and [illegible] she insists that it was with ex[illegible] and profound misgiving that [illegible] arms against his country. He de[illegible] he would never go outside of Vir[illegible] fight. He voted against the ordinance [illegible] in old Virginia, and urged his [illegible] to use her influence to keep West Vir[illegible] the union. LATEST ELECTION RETURNS.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—At the national republican committee headquarters this morning, it was agreed to use the remainder of the campaign fund to prosecute the Chinese letter case, and find out not only who wrote it but who instigated it.

Ex-Senator Dorsey claims that the legislature of every northern state has gone republican except, possibly, Nevada, and that if Fate has carried that legislature he may be counted with certainty to vote with the republicans.

All Concede.

NEW YORK, Nov. [illegible].—All the papers of this city, both democratic and republican, concede New York state to Garfield by majorities ranging from 15,000 to 25,000. The headquarters of the republican national committee are closed. No address to the people will be sent out by the committee. They claim that their success is sufficient assurance.

Popular Vote.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The Inter Ocean's Washington special says it is impossible to tell with accuracy whether Garfield or Hancock has the larger popular vote or what the republican majority in the house will be or whether the senate will be dem. or rep. without the casting vote of vice President Arthur. As to the popular vote it seems near a stand off between the two candidates; but this is owing to the immense and fraudulent majorities in the southern states whose colored vote has been wholly or in part suppressed. It was this that gave Tilden his majority of a quarter of a million on the popular vote, which was not the lawful expression of the legal voters, but in most of the southern states Hancock's majorities have been very much less than Tilden's, while in the northern states Garfield's have been uniformly larger than Hayes'. The popular verdict in the aggregate if honestly expressed would be immensely in favor of Garfield. If the California assembly is republican, as now reported, the senate will certainly be republican by one, two or three majority.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Estimated majorities show that Garfield will have the popular vote by over 100,000.

The New York Executive Committee Talk About Fraud and Things.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—All kinds of startling rumors were set afloat to-day in regard to some suspicious action about to be taken by the democratic national and state central committees, intended to prove fraud on the part of the republicans in New York state, more especially in the border counties, and in New York city and Brooklyn. Members of the national and state committees were very mysterious, but admitted some action would certainly be taken, and that promptly. The state committee had a meeting and issued the following address:

WHEREAS, It appears that at the recent election in this state, a vote has been cast in certain localities, largely in excess of the legal vote as determined by the recent census taken under the direction of the general government, therefore

Resolved, That it be the duty of the several county committees of this state and they are hereby requested by the state committee to examine such census returns and make comparison with the votes recorded as having been polled in the various districts of their county with a view of ascertaining the extent of fraudulent voting in this state, and forward immediately the result of such examination to W. A. Fowler, chairman dem. state ex. committee of New York. The unaccountable increase in the republican vote in New York and Kings counties and plain evidences of fraud in such votes demand immediate investigation on the part of the respective democratic organizations of these counties.

Resolved, That all citizens of this state in each and every locality who favor the right of the people to popular government, and who believe a fair vote and honest count essential to the perpetuation of our institutions, are requested to aid by all means in their power ascertainment of this result.

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to every democratic organization in this state.

New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Returns indicate that the house stands 146 republicans, 141 democrats, 6 greenbackers, senate 37 republicans, 39 democrats, conceding the democrats all they claim; but if either Davis or Mahone works with the republicans, or if both act independently, the republicans will have a majority by counting in Arthur for the casting vote. There is also the possibility of a republican senator from North Carolina or Delaware. In this calculation the California senator is conceded to the democrats.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Sun says that Garfield's majority in this state is about 20,300.

The Times to-morrow will publish a revised list of the majorities in this state. Garfield's majority is fixed at 20,000, with the assurance that the official returns, which can't be canvassed until a week, will not vary materially from these figures.

The Herald says Garfield's majority in this state is about 20,000.

The Tribune's figures on the state election foot up 22,000 majority for Garfield. Five or six counties are estimated moderately and later returns are expected to show 25,000.

The World says additional returns of Tuesday's election in this state increased Garfield's majority above figures given yesterday in Allegheny, Oneida, Orange, Steuben and Herkimer, and decreases it in Columbia, Jefferson and St. Lawrence. While Hancock's majority in Albany county is increased 133 over previous reports the latter county has done exceptionally well, and gives Hancock a majority of 3593 against 1160 for Tilden in 1876. With these changes made Mr. Garfield's apparent majority in the state is 14,467. It will not vary much from 15,000.

Orange county gives Garfield 429 majority; Beach, dem., for congress has 500 majority in the 14th district.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Corrected figures from this county show Hancock's majority to be 3593.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The Argus places the republican majority in the state on the presidential ticket at 14,204.

Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—Morse is elected to congress over Mayes.

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—With four towns to hear from, Garfield's plurality over Hancock in this state is 53,332.

Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Nov. 4.—Gen. Hawley will probably be elected U. S. senator.

HARTFORD, Nov. 4.—The vote for Connecticut for president as shown by complete returns from all sources was 132,562. Garfield's plurality 2,570. The total vote for governor is 132,265. Bigelow's, republican, plurality is 2333; majority 1107.

Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Official returns from the 13th congressional district gives Charles N. Barr, republican and greenbacker, 1034 majority over John W. Ryan, democrat.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Official returns received to-day increase the vote for Garfield and indicate a plurality of 36,000 for him in this state.

Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—Returns from 50 counties, complete, show republican majorities, 19,413; democratic majorities, 15,[illegible]9; republican gains, 2292; democratic gains, 1971; net republican gain, 322.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—Complete returns from 65 counties in Indiana show republican majorities of 20,858; democratic majorities, 21,203; net democratic majority, 345; republican gain, 125. Twenty-seven counties to hear from gave a net republican majority in October of 1213, which indicates a majority in the state of 702.

Illinois Legislature.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The state legislature stands as follows: Senate, which will elect U. S. senator in 1883, to succeed David Davis, 32 republicans, 18 democrats and 1 socialist. Of these 17 republicans were elected on Tuesday and eight democrats. The house stands: Republicans 84 or [illegible], and 67 or 69 democrats. This house will not participate in the election of U. S. senators. In the first three districts congressmen were elected by the following majorities: Aldrich, republican, 4162; Davis, republican, 4525; Farwell, republican, 4747.

Iowa.

DES MOINES, Nov. 4.—Cutts, rep., is surely elected in the 6th congressional district by 27 majority.

North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 4.—Fifty-four counties, casting two-thirds of the vote of the state, give Jarvis, dem., for governor, a majority of 3300. The same counties in 1876 gave Vance, dem., for governor, 6900 majority. Other counties give Vance 6185 majority. Jarvis' majority is estimated at 3000. Hancock runs ahead of the state ticket, and will have probably 10,000. Tilden's majority was 17,135. Returns from the first congressional district are meager. They indicate the election of Latham, dem. Shackleford, dem., is elected in the third district. All other congressmen are democratic but in the second district, where Hubbs, rep., is elected over Kitchen, present incumbent. The legislature is democratic.

Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 4.—Gen. Joseph Wheeler has undoubtedly defeated Lowe, supported by the greenbackers and republicans in the 8th district. This makes a solid democratic delegation from Alabama.

Tennessee.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 4.—Later returns from Lafayette and Hardeman counties in this the 10th congressional district, insures the election of W. F. Moore, republican candidate for congress, by not less than [illegible] majority, a republican gain.

CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 4.—Lowe is re-elected to congress in the 8th Alabama district, defeating General Wheeler by 670.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 4.—Later returns from the first district elects Pettibone, republican, over Taylor, present congressman, by about 1000.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 4.—Returns complete and partial from 68 counties out of 94 give Hawkins, for governor, 73,147, Wright 1,797, Wilson 49,118. Warner, dem., is elected to congress in the fifth district over J. M. Bright.

Missouri.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—A reliable report from Sedalia, Mo., declares that Col. Phillips, democrat, is beaten by Judge Rice, greenback republican, by 400 to 500 majority.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Reports from the 10th district say Mansur, dem., is defeated by Burrows.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—So far as heard from the Missouri congressional delegation stands as follows: 1st district, Clardy, dem., re-elected; 2d, Allen, dem., 3d, Frost, dem., re-elected; 7th, Rice, rep. greenbacker, a democratic loss; 8th, Van Horne, rep., a republican gain; 9th, Ford, rep. greenbacker, re-elected; 10th, Burrows, greenbacker, a democratic loss. Some doubts are expressed about the 5th and 6th districts, but the latest returns indicate the re-election of Bland, dem., in the former, and Waddill, dem., in the latter. The remaining districts in the state are certainly democratic.

Kansas.

TOPEKA, Nov. 4.—Returns from 18 counties in this state give Garfield 28,[illegible]; Hancock 15,[illegible]; republican majority, 12,[illegible]. Comparing this vote with that of 1876, it shows a republican gain of 29 per cent. and a democratic gain of 46 per cent. If this same [illegible] continue the republican vote of the state will be 129,710, democratic vote 68,420; total 198,830, which will give the republicans a majority of 61,291 in this state. The greenback vote, estimated 17,000, is not considered. Add this to the above republican and democratic vote and it will give a total for the state of 215,[illegible]. This ratio of increase may not prevail throughout the state but in no case is it believed the total vote will be less than 200,000 or the majority for Garfield less than 55,000. The state senate will stand, 37 republicans; 3 democrats. House, about 125 republicans and 12 opposition.

ATCHISON, Nov. 4.—Of 40 members of the state senate the democrats elect 16; fusionists 1. Out of 136 members of the house not over 10 are opposition. The total vote will be from 40,000 to 50,000 larger than ever before.

Colorado.

DENVER, Nov. 4.—Later returns, including the strongest democratic counties, do not materially change the figures telegraphed last night. The greenback vote in the state does not exceed 1500.

Nevada.

VIRGINIA, Nev., Nov. 3.—It will take till to-morrow to get the returns from Storey county. It is heavily democratic. The state is unquestionably democratic. The official counts are not in, but nearly every county is democratic.

The Democratic Style.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 4.—Four republicans were yesterday sent into the counties of Aladaua, Suwanee and Fadsden to secure fair play but were driven out and their lives threatened.

A Southern View of the Result.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 4.—The News and Courier concludes a leading article on the result as follows: We do not for a moment imagine that the American people wish that any state should again be ruled by a Scott, a Moses or a Bullock. The truth was that the control that was necessary and even indispensable in local affairs carried with it considerable influence in national affairs. With the help of two northern states the south could elect a president and be master of the government. We know, or think we know, that the power would have been exercised wisely; but the conquerers were not ready to be ruled, even to their own advantage, by the conquered. Nor would the south have been, if Grant instead of Lee had surrendered his army fifteen years since. Besides this latent war feeling, there was the mighty influence of bankers, merchants and shopkeepers who had no particular objection to the democracy coming into place except that it involved a change of some sort, and they wished no change of any sort. Why should they? Business is good; money is cheap; every department of trade is flourishing.

It is true that the currency is in an unstable condition; but a cool-headed citizen, not in debt, would not expect from a party which prostitutes itself to Flaisteads and De la Matyrs, a better dollar than would be furnished by Chittenden, Morton and Sherman, and, we may add that, with eyes wide open to all its faults, while the people north of the Potomac had come to the conclusion that there was a better prospect of good government from the republican party than from the democracy, whatever the exact way in which it came about, it is a hard fact that the government of the United States for the next four years will be republican in speech, person and action. The republican president will apparently have at his back a republican congress. What they will they can do with the southern states and their people. We hope and believe, however, that the business interests which were the mainspring of Tuesday's work will be opposed utterly to any legislation that would in any way embarrass agriculture and manufactures, trade and commerce of the south. It is to the interest of the north and west to take this position. They will do it whenever, and as soon as the people of the southern states cease to be controlled by politicians, as they would be autocrats of the union that they did their utmost to destroy. When this spectre of southern supremacy is laid away the northern people will be freer to exhibit their kindly and interested feelings, and one of the first questions the southern whites will have to ask themselves is whether the welfare of the south has been and is likely to be hindered or advanced by an alliance with the democracy of the north. It does not hurt these gentry to be beaten. They are sure to have just and equal governments in their states in any event. Not so with the south. In losing politically the south loses in pocket and peace of mind. Will the south remain on the losing side, and if so on what terms and for what purpose? The southern people, we fancy, will make themselves heard on this subject before winter is past. In that direction what she will do in the future, time must disclose. Much depends upon how great a gain the republicans have made in the senate and house, and what their policy will be toward this section. The south will be kept reasonably solid for her own protection and for the purpose of preserving the balance of power after the next apportionment, when the political domain shifts from the east to the west. The tremendous problem now confronting the two parties and all sections is, what will the administration of Mr. Garfield be in case of the control of congress; will it be modelled upon that of Hayes or dictated by Grant and Conkling, with Zachariah Chandler's spirit as the inspiring goblin? Until we know the exact nature of that administration we remain in abeyance. Meanwhile we may as well prepare for the worst and hope for the best.

Another Southern View.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 4.—The Times editorially says: Hancock has been beaten by John Kelly's crowd in New York. The north understands that the south is solid from the most natural motives. New Jersey, California, Nevada and probably Oregon as states were not afraid of the solid south. Three millions northern voters cast their ballots with the south. The war cry kept the old timers in line. Internal quarrels among democrats and stupid blundering did more for the republicans than they did for themselves to secure the victory.

No More Loyal Civilians or Military Heroes.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 4.—The Chronicle and Constitutionalist says in reference to the election: The south at least has the satisfaction of knowing she kept her part of the bargain and if the hero of Gettysburg is not president it is not her fault. We think too she has for the last time been led lamblike to slaughter. Her experiments with loyal civilians and military heroes have not been propitious in the past and the future holds out no hopes.

Fixing Up the Cabinet.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The Times' Omaha special: It is creditably rumored that Senator Hitchcock, who was a class-mate of Garfield at Williams College, will be tendered the Secretaryship of the Interior.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Republicans think John A. Kasson, of Iowa, the most available man for the Speakership. Secretary Sherman will contest the Ohio Senatorship with Foster, Taft and Matthews. Justices Hunt and Clifford will give place to Devens and Edmunds.

The Pennsylvania Legislature.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—The Times makes the legislature stand, senate, republican 29, democratic 19, greenback 1, vacancy 1; house, republicans 119, democrats 79, greenback 3. Republican majority over all on joint ballot, 46.

The Thunderer on Garfield's Election.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Times in its editorial on the election says: There are good reasons for believing General Garfield's administration will be like the present one, moderate in policy. The Times regrets that civil service reform and free trade have been thus equally thrust into background during the campaign.

The Southern Press.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 4.—The Appeal says the democrats have been badly beaten. The solid south stands almost alone for democratic principles. The sections are more sternly defiant than in 1860. Defeat is the result of the appeal to sectional prejudices by Conkling and lesser satellites of the stump, who slandered the south.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 4.—The Avalanche declares the denunciation of Garfield as a thief, perjurer and liar was one of the chief elements in the Democratic failure. The low character of Barnum's campaign and his fantastic tricks were another; and the consequences of election will be the dissolution of the two solid sections.

An Honest Democratic Comment.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Journal of Commerce, Democratic, says: The Republicans have achieved a very signal victory. The country may be congratulated that Garfield is fairly elected. The result must be accepted that the North is not willing to institute a change of administration. We have several times protested against personal denunciation of the Republican nominees, because there was nothing to justify such vituperation. We hope the dominant party will have a working majority in both houses, so that they may be held accountable for the management of public affairs. We shall give cordial support to all that is just and honorable in the coming administration.

The "Times'" Comments.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Times says the democratic newspapers of this city and vicinity are sadly at variance with each other in their explanations of their overwhelming defeat. One organ puts the blame on bad management of the democrats and the machine discipline of the republicans. Another thinks that corruption has won the day, while still another authority professes alarm at "this apotheosis of Grantism." It is generally agreed, however, that the doubtful states, including New York of course, were colonized by repeaters from some undiscovered country in which there was no election on Tuesday. It does not appear to have occurred to the minds of those [illegible] that the people of the United States have had something to do with this election.

The democrats have failed through all the canvass to understand the temper of the people. They thought that votes could be made by using childish tricks and stories. They are still in the dark so far as popular understanding and judgment are concerned. Why not come to the rational conclusion that the majority of voters of the United States are weary of the democratic party and its pretences?

The "Herald's" Comments.

The Herald says, Allowing for the increase of the voting population during four years, Hancock's city majority should not have been less than 60,000 if the democrats had held their own; but as a matter of fact it has shrunk to 12,967 less than Tilden's. Similar shrinkage has occurred in Brooklyn also through sympathetic influence. It is the shrinkages which have given the state of New York to Garfield. Now, who is responsible for them? Everybody knows the responsible man, John Kelly. He is the man who broke down the democratic party in the state last year and elected a republican governor by a plurality of 42,777 when the democratic vote if united was large enough to have elected a democratic governor by a majority of 34,7[illegible]. This gave the whole vast state patronage into the hands of Hancock's political adversaries to be used in aid of Garfield this year. That was the first act in the tragedy. The second act was played a fortnight ago when Kelly forced a follower of his own as democratic nominee for mayor, with the desperate design of making the democratic presidential ticket carry the load through for his own personal advantage, no matter how much harm it might do to Hancock's vote.

The New York World on the Situation.

The New York World says, Garfield will be chosen President by the electoral vote of this State and this vote he will receive only in consequence of the distrusts and unexpected falling off in the Democratic majorities of Brooklyn and of this city. That this falling off was the result of causes quite outside of the national contest is absolutely certain. The vote of New York will be given to Garfield, not because Garfield is the choice of a majority of the voters of New York, but because, so for first time in the history of our municipal parties, local and personal interests have been preferred to the general welfare of the party and of the country. Tweed, for example, gave this State to the Republicans in '71 by forcing on the city Democracy his candidacy for election to the State Senate. He was elected, but the entire county ticket and legislature were sacrificed. New York has secured a Democratic City Government which is so far a good thing; but it remains to be seen whether New York could not have secured this at less cost than that of 35 electoral votes, which, added to 138 from the South, 9 from New Jersey and 3 from Nevada, not to mention California and Oregon, would have elected Hancock President.

A Cockney Paper's Comments.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Advertiser says: We cannot but regret the result. In the first place there is no comparison between the merits of the two men. Garfield is a third-rate Republican party politician, belonging not perhaps to the school of Blaines, Conklings and Camerons, but quite as little to that of reformers like Adams or administrators like Sherman. He is the nominee of the wire pulling interests. Hancock is, with few exceptions, the most distinguished, without a single exception, we believe, the most loyal, honest and high-minded soldier still in active service of the Union. He is a man of distinction so great that even his obnoxious Democratic politics could not prevent his retention in active service when twenty-nine thirtieths of soldiers, officers, and generals of the federal army were relegated to civil life, and since the younger Adams no man of character equally high, a man so completely answering to what Englishmen mean by gentleman, has filled the Presidential chair. Garfield belongs to a type of which Lincoln was the best, and Andrew Jackson by no means the worst example.

More London Comment.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The old hunker paper, the Standard, fears that reform will be abandoned in republican politics and that the old senatorial wing will control matters, yet it concedes in the same breath that Garfield's administration will be a continuation of that of Hayes in every respect. It also says the election shows it is impossible to excite in the north any strong anti-southern feeling, and makes other wise remarks.

Eastern States.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The probable republican victory in North Carolina is believed here to be quite positive. The republicans of that state may cause surprise by their work.

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 4.—One negro killed and eleven wounded in an election riot.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 4.—The republicans gain two congressmen in Tennessee and elect the governor. Moon is probably elected here to congress by 1000 majority. The republicans gain 11 assemblymen and claim the legislature by virtue of other gains in middle and east Tennessee.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 4.—In six out of seven counties from which official reports are received the republicans gained very generally. The city is 5,200 democratic, a reduced majority. Democrats undoubtedly elect a solid congressional delegation.

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—Garfield about 40,000 in the state. The legislature strongly republican. Congressional delegation solid.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—The state is probably 40,000 democratic. Frost, dem., is elected in the 3d; Ford, greenbacker, is claimed; nothing definite. Waddell, dem., in the 6th, is probably elected and Mansur, dem., in the 10th. In the 4th Davis is elected; 5th, ——; 7th, Phillips; 11th, Clark; 12th, Hatch, and 13th, Buckner—all dems.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The Inter-Ocean's New York special says, the Tribune's calculation is: Congress, republicans, 153; democrats, 135. Republican supremacy is sure. The loss of Nevada and California, makes a democratic senate probable. Gen. Grant, in an interview, said he was induced to enter the political fight, merely from anxiety for the safety of the country if the democrats were successful. He never made a political speech before. It was his first fight, but he would not promise that it would be his last. If anything extraordinary or serious happens the party would have his services.

Returns embracing over half of Virginia swell the victory of the regular democratic electoral ticket, which, when all returns are in, will have a handsome majority over both readjusters and republicans.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Official returns give Ford, greenback republican, for congress in the 9th district, 98 majority.

California.

Sutter county gives Berry about 75 majority, but elects Chandler, rep., to the legislature by 125.

Merced gives Hancock and Learned majority.

Shasta county incomplete, but will give a reduced democratic majority.

Probabilities of a republican majority in the state are increasing, and it may be possible to arrive at a practical result this evening.

Republicans are feeling very good this evening over the prospect of carrying the state, but will probably make no formal demonstration.

Dakota Territory Strongly Republican.

YANKTON, Nov. 4.—Pettigrew, republican delegate to congress, about 5000. Legislature four-fifths republican.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

An English View.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Daily Telegraph devotes its leading article to the election. It says: So far as national issues are concerned the democratic party have fought and lost its last great battle. No future presidential campaign will be conducted under the banners which were originally hoisted by Thomas Jefferson, and while it symbolized hatred to England, by the foremost planks of its platform, that this feeling has passed away, is clearly evinced by the fact that in the struggle between Garfield and Hancock the sympathies of Englishmen have been all along in favor of the former. The success of the republican candidate presages not only continued but further extension of that prosperity which set in two years ago.

MANCHESTER, Nov. 4.—The Guardian, the most influential representative of the provincial press, coincides with the London papers in the congratulation of both parties on the decisive result of the election, leaving no opening for dispute. It says there seems to be no reason why, if the democrats do not change their tactics, the republicans should not hold office for another twenty years. Probably the former would do well to let the question of state rights drop as far as possible in obscurity. It behooves them to find another rallying cry. This may eventually be furnished by free trade which a succession of bad harvests or gradual exhaustion of the soil may bring into the range of practical politics. There is no possibility of a modification of the tariff, at least for four years. There is, however, some consolation for this, in the fact that the republican policy is otherwise friendly to England.

Shot At.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—Chas Saml. Dudgeon of Longford county, magistrate, was fired at near Longford, last night.

Land Leaguers.

The Freeman's Journal started subscriptions for the defense of the land leaguers. Parnell will speak at a land league meeting at Athlog, on Sunday next.

The Agitators in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—It is confidently asserted in justification of their acts and speeches that the Irish agitators will at the approaching trial call several hundred witnesses from rack rented estates.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Telegrams from Dublin say active preparations are going on among the land leaguers for the defense of the agitators. The Irish Times says it is stated to be the intention of the traversers to organize their defense so as to make it an inexhaustive affair and force the land commission to extend over a long period. They will examine Gladstone in reference to his Mid-Lothian speeches and his more recent utterances; Bright upon his Manchester speech, and Chief Secretary Forster both upon his writings and his observations in the house of commons. It is also their purpose to subpena several landlords in Ireland as well as their agents. The line of defense will be as follows: They will in the first place endeavor to show cause why information should not be taken against the traversers. Upon this point an interesting legal question is expected to arise. Having pleaded not guilty and the case having gone to trial, they will examine witnesses with a purpose as stated, of justifying the speeches upon which it is sought to condemn them. They intend to produce tenant farmers from different parts of the country, especially the districts in which the land meetings were held, with reference to the charge of conspiracy. They propose tendering in evidence the work done by the land league in its character as a relief committee, during the recent period of distress in Ireland.

John Dillon, M. P., now absent from Dublin, will begin his return from Nenagh, served with a subpena, summoning him to appear before the queen's bench.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—At a special meeting of the land league to-day Parnell complained of being watched by detectives. He said if they followed him to his home in the country he would have them put in the river. He gave a long account of the law of conspiracy which he said was obsolete. He urged branches of the land league to send contributions for the defense. Parnell in course of his speech made a personal attack on Forster.

Driving out the Socialists.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—In accordance with the new socialist law 60 citizens of Hamburg have been ejected from that city, also 20 families in Altona. Many families have received notice to quit different towns in Schleswig-Holstein.

Severe Storms.

LIMASOL, Nov. 4.—There has been a severe thunder storm in all parts of Cyprus, doing great damage to property. Five houses in this place were washed away.

Rise in Breadstuffs.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 4.—Ordinary rye bread has risen to double price. Great scarcity exists in St. Petersburg and in various provinces, which American competition in wheat and flour obviously fails to meet.

German Freedom of the Press.

HANOVER, Nov. 4.—Two contributors to a democratic print have been sentenced—one to a year's imprisonment, the other to seven months in the fortress—for insulting the emperor.

Fatal Fall.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 4.—At Mons to-day thirteen men were precipitated to the bottom of a colliery shaft and killed, by the breaking of the hoisting apparatus.

Stabbed.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—During the expulsion of Neminists at Lyons yesterday a disturbance occurred, in which a workman was killed with a sword.

The Walking Match.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Score at 10 o'clock: Rowell, 361 miles, Littlewood, 319; Dobler, 335. Rowell rested 5½ hours last night. Dobler comes out occasionally, but the race is virtually settled. Howard has left the building. The breaking down of Dobler and Howard is attributed to their not reversing their direction, whereby their right legs in both cases gave way.

At 5:20 the score was: Rowell, 292; Littlewood, 247.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Dobler reappeared at six o'clock, his leg evidently much better. The last mile run simultaneously by Rowell and Littlewood told its tale, as Rowell went quite queer; afterwards Littlewood retired for the night. At 9 o'clock Rowell completed 100 miles in 20 hours and retired for the night at 11:15. Dobler retired at 12:30 A. M., when the score stood: Rowell, 416; Littlewood, 360; Dobler, 360.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Bad as the Democrats.

PANAMA, Oct. 27.—Captain Gaige, of the American steam launch Isabel, has made a statement to the U. S. consular agent at Payta of the seizure of his vessel in that port by Chileans while he was on shore. Charles Aston and Robert McLeisch, engineers, declare they were on board at the time and were ordered out of the launch by officers who took possession of her, taking down the U. S. flag. One of the Chilean officers stamped on the flag several times, uttering curses against the people of the United States, who, as they said, were the cause of the blowing up of two of their vessels during the present war with Peru.

Bandits Captured.

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 10.—The force sent from the province of Pianhy in pursuit of 200 marauders who made a raid on the town of Jannatia last year, overtook them at Urabu in Bahia, when a severe fight ensued. Sixty men were killed and most of the bandits captured.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Murder and Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Early this morning Leon Boniface fired three shot at Hattie Lee, on Waverly Place, inflicting probably fatal wounds. He then shot himself through the head, causing instant death. Jealousy was the cause of the tragedy, the woman having deserted Boniface for a new partner.

Smallpox.

A student of the university came over from Berkeley to-day with the smallpox, and was sent to the pest house.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—The sudden outbreak of smallpox in this city takes the health department by surprise. An occasional mild case has been reported for some months past, exciting no alarm. Numerous cases reported the current week, now aggregating about seventy, are scattered all over and are confined to no class of population. Not a single case is known to exist in Chinatown.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Ten new cases of smallpox were authenticated to-day. The dispatch of last night saying 70 cases occurred since Monday, was based on an exaggerated information, the real number to that date being only 30. There are now 80 cases at the pest house. More cases were reported this evening, but are not yet verified. The publication of facts caused a rush to the public vaccinators, 800 being operated upon during the day.

The Kalloch Case.

The supreme court to-day denied writs of mandate, certiorari and habeas corpus in the case of I. M. Kalloch, charged with murder. The case now goes back to the lower court for a decision on its merits.

Dead.

Hattie Lee, shot by Boniface to-day, died this evening.

Suicide.

Byron Penkham, carpenter, committed suicide at Potrero this afternoon by shooting himself.

Slight Earthquake.

A smart shock of an earthquake was felt at 1:37 this evening.

Departure of Chinese.

The steamer Gaelic, for China to-day, took away 653 Chinamen. Inspectors of one of the Chinese companies stated to a Call reporter that they left on account of hard times and inability to get work.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

OLYMPIA, Nov. 4—7:15 P. M.—Thurston county's official vote gives Brents 132 and Bloomfield 153 majority. Estimates, based on partial returns, give Burke 50 majority in Mason county.

Easter precinct, Chehalis county, gives Brents 3, Bloomfield 5 and Goodell, joint representative, 6 majority.

Rev. Newell's reception last night was a pleasant affair and largely attended.

Jefferson county ticket complete, gives Burke, dem., for delegate, 16 majority. Ballard, rep., prosecuting attorney, 50 majority. Republicans elect county and precinct officers out of 16. Cann, Bean and representative, democratic.

Island county, Burke, 17 majority. Ballard, 15. Hovey, rep., for joint councilman, 56 majority.

Barometrical.

PORT TOWNSEND, Nov. 4.—The meteorological observer at Neah Bay reports: Highest barometer during October, 30.78; lowest, 29.52; mean, 30.17. Highest temperature, 62; lowest, 33; mean, 48. Prevailing wind, easterly; maximum velocity on the 30th, 50 miles. Total rainfall, 5.43 inches. Frost, four mornings. Weather during the month, pleasant. Temperature, uniform. High wind on the 26th changed from southeast to west and blew strong about 30 hours. Considerable fog on Cape Flattery during the month.

THE REVISION OF THE BIBLE.

[Dr. Howard Crosby in North American Review.]

It needs to be modified by sound reason. Were the English bible chiefly a work of art, or a monument of the English old time, the esthetic feeling should rightly dominate and a jealous conservatism should watch against modern innovations, by the hand of whatever scholar they might be wrought. We do not deny the literary skill of King James's translators. Their work is artistic in the highest sense. They were men of broad and cultivated minds, and they gave the English people a model of literary beauty and sublimity in their translation (or revision) which compares most favorably with the versions of all other tongues. We may add that in this artistic character of their work they themselves borrowed the phrases and words of Tyndale, which had already become antiquated, and so gave the majesty of hoariness to the other virtues of their style. In looking at their work, therefore, we are beholding a phase of the English language really older than their own time. But we must bear in mind that beauty and antiquity of style are not the paramount considerations in the question of Bible translation. The truth—the truth is what we desire. All other objects sink into insignificance in comparison with this. We seek a perfect translation of the Hebrew and Greek. The idea is of first importance, and the clothing of the idea is secondary. A perfect translation is indeed impossible. A grand sentence must lose something in passing into another language. If it keep its main thought, it must lose its grandeur, and, if it keep its grandeur, it must work some change in the thought. We must, therefore, give up the idea of reaching a perfect translation, although we make it our goal. Which, then, shall we throw out of our car as we advance—the sense or the style? Undoubtedly the latter. The only fatal embarrassment in this is at those crises where the very style enters into the sense, and you cannot tear them apart without destroying both. In such cases we must bow to the necessity and give a bad translation, leaving it to the scholar to explain the difficulty and the real meaning in whatever circumlocutary way he may. Generally speaking, then, we must sacrifice style to sense, and in doing this at the present time, we may subject ourselves to the charge of iconoclasm. If a rich, round sentence that we have loved to mouth is trimmed to angularity in order to express the truth, the crowd of critics will be apt to overlook the constraining necessity and bestow on us a consentaneous groan. Let us give an illustration. In Acts xxvi.: 24, the words of Festus to Paul are musical and terse; "Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad." It is a strong English sentence; each clause is well balanced. You may compare them to two equal shafts striking the center. As you read them you are Festus, and you speak with conscious force. Now, shall we dare alter such a rare specimen of telling English? All the beautiful in us rises up in indignation at the thought. And yet we must humble ourselves and our pride of taste for the relentless cause of truth. What is the Greek here? What did Festus really say? * * * The truth is, Festus did not say half as fine a thing as our English sentence. Moreover, he did not mean what our English sentence means. He at first, in the impetuosity of his feelings, told Paul he was mad; then, correcting himself with true Roman politeness, he modifies his expression, and says that Paul's learning was gradually bringing him to a condition of madness. The English of what Festus said is: "Thou art mad, Paul; much learning is turning thee to madness." Our received version makes the two clauses of equal strength, the latter clause merely adding the cause of madness. Moreover, the received version does not recognize the similarity and relation of "mainei" and "mania." If we translate as above we lose a remarkably strong sentence; but, if we leave the beauty and strength undisturbed, we do not have what Festus really said. Now, ye critics, take this instance as a sample, and tell us what we are to do. Are we to cling to principle faithfully, or shall we hold on to principle only until we see a pretty face? What will you have, that which the sacred writers say, or that which King James' translators say?

The number of people alive a year ago, but dead now from not knowing it was loaded, is estimated at 500, with a few old shotguns yet to hear from.

GEN. GRANT ON THE STAND.

THE OREGONIAN a few days ago contained the substance of Gen. Grant's testimony before the Warren court of inquiry. Fuller particulars of this interesting event in a rather dreary investigation will be read with interest, so the following is reproduced from the special to the Chicago Tribune: When it came to the question of the order of Gen. Grant authorizing Gen. Sheridan to relieve Gen. Warren while the battle was in progress, Gen. Grant said: "I recollect sending such a message, but I cannot state the exact terms."

Q. "Will you give the terms as nearly as you can remember them?" A. "As nearly as I can recall the language, I told Gen. Sheridan to relieve Gen. Warren of the command of the Fifth corps if in his judgment it was necessary to success. It had been determined to strike a blow, and I meant that it should be a final blow to the rebel army. I thought of the consequences if the movement should fail, and I intended to give Sheridan to understand that nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of success, so that if necessary he should not hesitate to remove any officer." The question that followed, and which brought on the

PROTRACTED DISCUSSION

Previously adverted to, was put and answered so quickly that before the counsel for Gen. Warren had time to object it was already recorded by the stenographer. It was: "Will you state to the court your reason for sending that message?" A. While appreciating Gen. Warren's courage and his qualities as a soldier, from what I knew of his previous conduct, I was apprehensive that he might fail Gen. Sheridan at the critical moment, and I sent the message so that the general might feel at liberty to take any measures essential to success. Gen. Warren's counsel objected to the answer, unless the judgment of Gen. Warren contained in it were based upon events legitimately embraced within the scope of the inquiry, those relating to the battle of Five Forks and the day preceding. He asked that if the judgment was not so based the answer should be stricken from the record. He could see no reason, he said, why an opinion of Gen. Warren entertained by Gen. Grant, not based upon the events immediately within the scope of the inquiry, should become a matter of record before the court, unless counsel for Gen. Sheridan desired to weigh the applicant with the adverse judgment of a great soldier, the greatest in the United States, certainly, and possibly the greatest in the world.

GEN. GRANT SMILED GRIMLY

At the compliment. A pause followed the question, "Do you recollect any earlier order to Warren to co-operate with Gen. Sheridan?" during which the general consulted with Gen. Badeau, and then answered that he did not know from memory, but did know from the record that he had been looking over this morning that he had. Some further testimony on this point followed, and in regard to a statement that Gen. Warren had suggested an attack on the enemy's rear, the witness said that he had no knowledge of it, but admitted that he had no recollection to the contrary. He found, he said, that where officers undertook to think for themselves instead of obeying orders it generally led to defeat. He did not like it, and in conclusion said: "That led to the removal of one officer." Gen. Warren was evidently referred to, and his counsel insisted upon having the latter part of the answer stricken out, and upon Gen. Grant's consent it was ruled off. In the course of the cross-examination of Gen. Grant the questions finally led to the final interview with Grant after he was relieved of his command. The general said he recollected the event, but Warren would probably have a more distinct remembrance of the interview than he.

Q. But you can tell something about it, can you not? A. What I remember of it is, that Gen. Warren came to me along in the evening and said he had been relieved of his command.

Q. And what reply did you make to that? A. My impression is that I said I was not surprised to hear it. Gen. Warren will probably remember precisely what I said.

[Here the witness glanced at Gen. Warren half deprecatingly.]

Q. Did you give any

REASON FOR REMOVING HIM?

A. It is my impression that I did intimate to him that it would be better for him to have an independent command where he would not have to obey anybody, and that I offered to give him a command suited to his temperament. I think he replied that as he had been removed from his command of the fifth corps, he preferred not to have any command at all unless it could be restored to him. Q. Did he not ask for a court of inquiry? A. I don't recollect whether he did or not. It wasn't a very good time for courts of inquiry just then, and I did not feel inclined to talk over such trifles. Q. Has he ever asked you for a court of inquiry since that time? A. He may have done so. The subject has pretty well gone out of my memory, but it is very likely he has." During the latter part of the examination Gen. Grant was evidently swayed by a desire to avoid saying anything harsh. He freely admitted Warren's bravery and spoke kindly of his qualities as a soldier, but insisted when pressed on the point that he did not obey orders with sufficient promptness and stopped to think too long before acting; that when officers undertook to think for themselves instead of promptly obeying orders, it generally led to defeat. He did not like it, and in conclusion said "that led to the removal of one officer." This put Mr. Stickney on the alert, as Gen. Warren was evidently referred to, and he insisted upon having the latter part of the answer stricken out. There was no desire on the part of its author to have it go on record and it was ruled out. Once before he had been questioned as to his knowledge of Warren's movements, and his answer was that he had no recollection of the matter further than that he had been disappointed in him. This also was objected to.

The Daily Oregonian.

FRIDAY MORNING NOV. 5, 1880.

AN OUTRAGE AND A WARNING.

The vote of Couch precinct in this city last June was as follows: George, republican, 247; Whiteaker, democrat, 231. This was about the actual number of voters residing in and entitled to vote in the precinct five months ago. Last Tuesday the vote was as follows: For the Garfield electors, 255; for the Hancock electors, 629. The republican vote showed about the natural increase that might have been reasonably and honestly expected. It is so moderate, indeed, as not to excite any just suspicion of unfairness. Its proportion will on examination be found just about that of the average increase of the republican vote in the county since June last. Now look at the other side. The democratic vote was increased from 231 to 629! The increase in this single precinct was 398 votes, or more than one-half of the total democratic increase in the county. Of course such a result cannot be accounted for on any possible principle of honesty. It was the most flagrant and infamous outrage on the ballot ever witnessed in Oregon. Not less than 300 votes were stuffed into the ballot boxes which had no shadow of legal right to go in. The scoundrels swore them in, and other scoundrels who were managing the job and paid for it stood by and vouched for the illegal voting and the perjury. There is no man who believes that this rabble rout was composed of persons who had a legal right to vote. It had been collecting here during a month preceding the election; coming from nobody knows where, and vanishing the day after the election, as it came. Most of the gang were unknown vagabonds, drifting about the world and ready, wherever they may have a temporary stopping place, to take a hand in any riotous, turbulent or unlawful proceeding. The actual citizens of Oregon must protect themselves by a registry law against such gross outrage. It is the only possible way to do it. Citizens must not allow themselves to be overborne by a floating rabble who have no residence anywhere, no names that anybody knows, who are here to day and there to-morrow, and ready to be picked up by unscrupulous ward politicians and used as instruments to consummate outrages on the fundamental principles of republican government. If this is not a warning that will induce our people to insist on a remedy they will ere long, as the city grows to large proportions, find the ballot boxes wrested entirely from their control by a non-resident rabble, led by irresponsible and unscrupulous partisan knaves who study the manipulation of elections as a trade. It is time to look this thing squarely in the face. Unless proper remedy be provided, the villainy perpetrated at the Couch polls on Tuesday last will be enacted at every polling place in the city of Portland.

STILL DOUBTING.

It seems that there are democrats of the stolid, stupid sort who will not yet believe that Hancock is defeated. All day yesterday they were still encouraging themselves and each other with rumors that somebody was getting dispatches which put a different face on matters, and that there was reason to believe that Hancock, in spite of all previous reports, was elected. Eagerness to believe the reports rendered these people positively irrational. They alternately expressed confidence in the most unfounded rumors and cursed "The Oregonian's lying dispatches." These unhappy people all talk as if The Oregonian, because it has been unable to give them the news they expected, had done them wanton and irreparable injury. They should reflect that they had no reason to expect the result they so eagerly desired. The drift of events for weeks past should have been sufficient to show that there was no real probability of Hancock's election. Nothing can be more foolish than to suffer the wishes to warp the judgment. That there should be those who still doubt whether Gen. Garfield is elected is positively amazing. It shows a partisan feeling to which the judgment is invincible. There is little reason for wonder that the mass of extreme partisans cannot be convinced by opinions, when they refuse even to believe facts after the day of opinion is over and fact is the only thing offered or wanted. Misunderstanding entirely the nature of the recent contest and the temper of the people, the democratic managers persuaded themselves that they were sure of success, and did not know that their petty tricks and small expedients could have no possible weight. They succeeded, too, in making their partisan followers believe that success was assured; and now it seems that nothing can disenchant these unfortunate people. After having resolved so many times not to believe a word of The Oregonian's news, it now is a practical impossibility for them to believe it when it dashes their hopes so terribly. After the subject has become an old one to all other people, perhaps, however, these [illegible] may begin to get into their [illegible] the actual truth.

A BACKWARD COUNTRY.

Were the people of Russia thoroughly intelligent, they would soon raise their agriculture above competition with that of America; for they have a vast country, naturally fertile, and are nearer the great markets of western Europe than the American agriculturist, and therefore have a natural advantage. But their social, political and industrial condition is so degraded that they make no progress. Russia is reckoned one of the great grain-growing countries of the world, and yet American grain and and flour are now selling in St. Petersburg. Although eminently agricultural, only 271,000,000 acres—a small area, comparatively—are under cultivation in Russia. In the central belt of the empire the soil, mostly black mold, is extremely fertile, seldom requiring manure. The system of tillage is mainly the three-field system, as it is called, in which one-third of the land is allowed to lie fallow. In the south and southeast the fallow system peculiar to that country is practiced. It consists of raising three or or four consecutive crops from the same land and then allowing it to remain idle for five or six years. The soil then begins to grow feather grass, regarded as a sign of returning fertility. Since the emancipation of the serfs, to whom a large portion of the land has been transferred in freehold, husbandry has undergone great general changes. Having lost their former right to the labor of the slaves, the land owners find it advantageous to decrease their tilled land or lease parts of it to the peasants, often in return for half the crop. Again, agriculture suffers greatly for want of proper transportation, causing the price of grain to be very low in the localities where it is produced. The chief cereals are wheat, grown as far north as latitude sixty-two degrees, rye, barley and oats. In the south buckwheat and millet are raised, and from these and rye comes the staple food of the inhabitants. Since 1840 potatoes have been extensively grown, the government having done much to encourage their growth after the famine of 1839. An area of 486,000,000 acres is covered with woods, but timber is so liberally used by the people in building houses, heating, lighting, making carts and household utensils and in other ways, that the supply is steadily diminishing. From ninety to ninety-five per cent. of the northern territory is covered with forests, which are extremely scarce in the south. Wood, the principal article of interior commerce, is floated down the rivers from the treeful to the treeless districts. With such rich soil and so many other priceless gifts from the liberal hand of nature, it is strange that Russia should not continually bask in the sunshine of prosperity, and her people enjoy an unvarying condition of competence.

Old Virginia is to be again invaded by the Yankees. A New York company, headed by C. P. Huntington, has just been organized with a capital of $4,000,000 to purchase, own or sell Virginia real estate. The associates already own vast tracts of abandoned lands between the James and York rivers east of Richmond. Much of the land is now covered with a second growth of cedar and pine and the entire tract is believed to be specially adapted to the growth of fine fruit. The associates will divide their estate into small tracts and after making improvements will sell out to farmers and fruit growers from the north and from Europe, on easy payments if desired. They do not propose to monopolize the land or hold it permanently.

It is due to the police force of the city to say that on election day it acted with efficiency, and refrained from any kind of participation in the political contest. Its efforts were devoted entirely to preservation of the peace and protection of the rights of lawful electors. Citizens have no reason for dissatisfaction with the conduct of the police force, and we hear of none.

The days of prophecy are not ours. At Cincinnati, on the day before Hancock was nominated, William S. Groesbeck of that city, a prominent democratic leader, said that the nomination of Winfield Scott Hancock would prove the Waterloo of the democratic party, as the nomination of Winfield Scott proved the Waterloo of the whig party.

The morning organ of mourning Bourbonism says the election was "a contest of the tax payers of the country against a horde of tax consumers." Yes, yes; that was indeed a mighty body of tax payers who put in the majority at Couch precinct on Tuesday.

[illegible] It is learned that the grad[illegible] [illegible] is now almost com[illegible] [illegible] the Willamette [illegible] [illegible] the Walla Walla [illegible] When the road is completed it will [illegible] run a branch into Mr. [illegible] prairie from [illegible]

[illegible] Capt. Spencer [illegible] [illegible] Dufur, Tuley and Ferguson [illegible] Capt. Spencer says he left the [illegible] river [illegible] He steamed up to [illegible] the three hunters were to be taken on [illegible] They were not there [illegible] It was quite dark at that hour and [illegible] landed and whistled and shouted for [illegible] As they did not answer or put in an [illegible] the boat last came on to the city.

[illegible] SHOOTING.—A gentleman who resides at [illegible] on the east side of the river, informs us [illegible] number of boys are in the habit of coming [illegible] Portland and shooting in that vicinity. [illegible] said, the conduct of these boys in the [illegible] use of firearms is certainly reprehen[illegible] other day three went over from this [illegible] began to fire their guns at random. There [illegible] houses near where they were standing, [illegible] appear to notice that fact nor be care[illegible] who was working on a new house in the [illegible] narrowly escaped injury or death. While [illegible] of the bullets came whistling past his [illegible] uncomfortably close.

COLLINS' LANDING.—A dispatch to THE OR[illegible] from The Dalles says: Fire broke out in [illegible] building at Collins Landing last night [illegible] destroyed the building and contents, [illegible] about $1800. The house was owned by [illegible] who has a small insurance. His son, [illegible] Monger and family, occupied the premi[illegible] of course lost their entire household effects, [illegible] were absent from home at the time of [illegible] It is supposed to have been the work of an [illegible]

[illegible] INSTITUTE.—Yesterday the Clarke coun[illegible] School Teachers' Institute convened in [illegible] The sessions are being held in the M. E. [illegible] and will hold over the 4th and 5th. Hon. [illegible] territorial superintendent of public [illegible] and Hon. Robert Robb, county superin[illegible] are present. This evening Rev. L. A. THE OPERA COMPANY.—Since the opening of the subscription list for the Emily Melville Opera Company [illegible] a very flattering degree of success has attended their efforts. A large number of our citizens, including merchants, bankers and professional business men, have taken season tickets. However, the aggregate amount of subscriptions is not equal to what is required to meet the very heavy expenses incurred in bringing the company to this city. It is to be hoped that our citizens will subscribe liberally and make up the amount required. The company will [illegible] Portland on the steamer Columbia, which leaves for Portland next Sunday morning. The company will consist of twelve principals [illegible] [illegible] together with new [illegible] suitable scenic effects, etc.

BRIEF NOTES.

River coming up.

The steamer [illegible] arrived.

Hotels are well patronized.

Political excitement subsiding.

How are you President Garfield?

The smoke of political battles is clearing away.

No. [illegible] has nominated Chief Jordan for reelection.

Some of the fire alarm boxes are said to need testing.

The [illegible] gamblers are not happy. The grand jury is in session.

The democrats have given up New York but it was like pulling eye teeth.

Work on the new bridge across the Willamette is being crowded forward.

That discreet and wise bird, the turkey, is looking with a sort of squint toward the 25th of November.

A new and much needed sidewalk has just been laid on the east side of First street between Washington and Alder.

There will be a regular communication of Portland Lodge No. 55, F. & A. M., at their lodge room Masonic temple, this (Friday) evening at 7:30 o'clock. Work.

PERSONAL.

William Collins of Collins' landing is in the city.

F. M. Gabbert, THE OREGONIAN's agent at Myrtle creek is in the city.

H. H. Blake, superintendent of agencies of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. is in the city.

We acknowledge a pleasant call last evening from Judge John B. Hoyt and Hon. J. B. Allen of Olympia.

Mr. Geo. Starling, agent for the Emily Melville opera company, arrived on the State of California and is registered at the Esmond.

Mrs. R. N. Williams and children have returned to their home, Fifteenth and C streets, after an absence of several months at their old home in California.

Judge R. P. Boise came down from Salem yesterday. He will leave for the east this morning, going by the way of the Dalles and Boise. The judge expects to be in Washington city by the 17th inst. He will be absent from the state about six weeks.

Mr. Willard Spear, formerly in the boot and shoe manufacturing business in this city, died in Olympia on Sunday, Oct. 24th. He has been a lingering, helpless paralytic for about a year. Mrs. Spear and her son Harry will probably remove to this city.

Mrs. A. B. Meacham returned to Oregon by the last steamer. She was welcomed by her son and daughter, who are now residents of Portland. Mrs. Meacham has been living at Washington, D. C. but will remain on the Pacific coast with her children until Col. Meacham's connection with the Ute commission ceases.

"WHAT HANCOCK TOLD JOHN MYERS."

John Myers and Judge Watt, both [illegible] [illegible] and both democrats of the purest Bourbon [illegible] [illegible] in the war [illegible] [illegible] took such an active part, took great interest in the attempt of the "Superb" to get elected to the presidency, and voted as they fought. Hon. John was a delegate to Cincinnati and helped to nominate Gen. Hancock. When he returned [illegible] [illegible] the platform and Hancock's letter of [illegible] were [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] said Hon. John, "when I saw Hancock, he told me he would approve a much stronger anti-chinese bill than the one Hayes vetoed." And with this pledge the [illegible] was well satisfied, and [illegible] [illegible] were based on what Hancock told Myers. [illegible] [illegible] however, was too great [illegible] [illegible] told John Myers.

And by the way the Hon. John Myers was very confident that the "Superb" would be elected and that the [illegible] would [illegible] [illegible] the spoils Hon. John hoped to share [illegible] he got back from Cincinnati, till the Indiana disaster, he was trying his hands [illegible] order and prepare [illegible] his stock of dry goods and groceries [illegible] to Portland. But when the disaster [illegible] [illegible] he sent down to a Portland merchant for an extra barrel of sugar, thinking the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Last Tuesday he sat in the telephone office at Oregon City, to hear the election news. As long as nothing came but the dispatches of the Bourbon organ in Portland, Hon. John was happy, pleased and [illegible] to wish he had not bought that last barrel of sugar. But later, the news from THE OREGONIAN office began to come, and Hon. John said, "Well, if we can't get anything but the lying dispatches of THE OREGONIAN, I'll go home," and out he strode. By this time, however, Hon. John realizes that what he characterized as "THE OREGONIAN's lying dispatches," were too true, and the concern he [illegible] has got [illegible] way down the dim vista of the future, beyond Hon. John's ken, and "what Hancock told John Myers" has been found to be less reliable than even THE OREGONIAN's dispatches.

RAILROAD NEWS.

A Line from Ogden to Boise City within Eighteen Months—The O. R. & N. Co's. Road from the Dalles to Portland.

Col. J. Richardson formerly president of the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad and afterwards one of the leading spirits of the Utah Northern was in the city this week and left Thursday morning on the Oregon. He brings the important information which may be relied upon as authentic that Mr Jay Gould and associates of the Union Pacific railroad have raised all necessary funds and completed all arrangements for building a standard gauge railroad from Ogden, Utah territory to Boise City, Idaho territory, a distance of about two hundred and fifty miles. The narrow gauge road already built from Ogden to a point forty miles north will be utilized by laying a third rail. The road will run through the Malade country and will be completed within eighteen months. The Grande Ronde branch of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Co's. line to Baker city, Oregon, will be completed about the same time and there will then remain only one hundred miles to complete another transcontinental line.

Vice president Oakes of the O. R. & N. Co. stated to a representative of THE OREGONIAN yesterday that a contract for grubbing and clearing the land on the proposed line of their road from this city to the Dalles would be let in a few days. When this work shall have been completed, so that surveys can be made with perfect accuracy, a permanent line will be located. The road will be completed to this city within two years.

Mrs. Dickey of Dickey's prairie brought 400 lbs of prime butter into Oregon City last week.

Last week Mr. Thos. Blanchard and his son Tommy, aged 12 years, dug potatoes for Mr. D. McArthur of New Era, for two days, the little fellow just pulling the vines. The first day's work measured 192 bushels and the second 184 bushels.

Messrs. Geo. Blount and Wm. Adkins of Clackamas county had the honor of cutting down the largest fir tree on the route of the narrow gauge now being constructed on the Crabtree farm south of the south fork of the Santiam. The tree was 215 feet in height and 10 feet in diameter.

The wife of Richard Everest died at his residence near Newberg, Yamhill county, Oregon, on the 11th day of October last. Mrs. Jane Everest was born on the 9th day of March, 1798, in the parish of Beaver, Kent county, England. She emigrated, with her husband and ten children to the United States in 1837, and settled in Newark, Ohio, remained there two years, moved from there to Washington, Iowa, remained there eight years and from there came over with ox teams to Oregon in the fall of 1847, and settled in Chehalem valley, where she resided until her death. She leaves her husband, nearly 83 years old, and several children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren to mourn her loss.

THE BONANZA MINES.

It is an open secret that unless new discoveries of ore are made in these mines that their working will have to be abandoned, and then the question arises whether more money has been taken from them than has been put into. But no such question of comparative benefits can arise in connection with the Oregon Kidney Tea, for every dollar put into that has produced a thousand dollars worth of good to the victims of backache and kidney trouble, as their unanimous testimony will show. Sold in all the stores.

TALES OF THE EAST.

Zobeide and her Silks—Scenes of Oriental Splendor.

When the empire of the Saracens was at its zenith, silk culture and silk manufactures were added to the commerce of the further east, which had already proved a large element of prosperity. The Arabian tales are full of allusions to silks. It was the material of the tapestry hangings in the great halls of that enchanted castle where the young king of the Black Isles, in sorely [illegible] [illegible] every day a cowhiding at the hands of his unfaithful spouse. The trade in silks carried by caravans from one city to another is frequently alluded to. A merchant [illegible] [illegible] left, we are told, one hundred bales of brocades and other silks [illegible] [illegible] ready to be sent to Bagdad [illegible] [illegible] shows that the scaffold a matter of official duty as well as a good business venture [illegible] out his father's project by traveling with the goods to the Moslem capital. The guild youth of that day, if desirous to see the world, usually made the grand tour in a caravan. Bales of silk formed a considerable part of the riches of the robbers' cave, whose door yielded to the word "Open sesame!" and made the fortunes of Ali Baba. There is a [illegible] story of a practical joke practiced by the Caliph Haroun Alraschid on an obscure citizen of Bagdad, the [illegible] was stupefied by a powerful narcotic, and while in that condition was carried into the palace and put to bed. The next morning he was greeted with every attention and ceremony as the commander of the faithful, while the real caliph watches him through a lattice and enjoys the bewilderment. The fun was fast and furious, but it came very near being spoiled by the uncontrollable mirth that ensued when a pair of silken drawers was handed to the sham caliph. He had not been used to such luxuries, and he put on the garment as if it were a jacket, drawing the legs over his arms. In another tale the pomp and wealth of the king of India are described by Sinbad the Sailor in a sort of official report to the caliph of Bagdad. One of the details is that 1000 men, clad in cloth of gold and silk of the [illegible] [illegible] at that time some definite relation to the rank of their user. Thus, it is related of Zobeide that, when in a strange city, though ignorant of the language and customs, by carefully studying a curtain of silk stuff hung before a gateway, she discovered that this was the entrance to the palace of the reigning prince of the country. But Zobeide was peculiarly qualified for this study. She was doubtless a good judge of silk. A small patrimony which she had inherited at Bagdad had been invested by her in the business of rearing silk-worms. She was so prosperous in producing and selling silk that she was able to restore the fortunes of each of her sisters when they came to her, successfully in the state of beggary. Eventually she became rich enough to own and occupy a magnificent house, whose front was adorned with fine columns, and had a gate of ivory. Haroun Alraschid in disguise, shared the hospitalities of this mansion one evening. He was charmed with its owner and made her his wife.

"An acute observer," said Dr. Brown, "can easily detect the nationality of a man. Now," one could easily tell that yonder fellow unloading the cart was Hibernian." Here the horse twisted his head around and shook off some of his harness, and the unloader shouted "Make behave yourself, put your head down, you tayfer, will you?" which rather shook the doctor's reputation as a physiognomist.

O'Finnegan—"Look at that, now, Brown! The Irishman will have his reight is, then, for he's got the heart, the lungs, and brickbats, bedad!" Brown—"Mark my words, O'Finnegan these riots and murders will ruin business in your country." O'Finnegan—"Be jabers, an a good job, too! I hate business; and show me the reight-minded, three-hearted Irishman that doesn't."—Fun.

An amateur cornet player, not being allowed to practice in his residence at Bloomington, Ill., shut himself up in the stable. He had not blown many notes before a horse kicked him to death.

In Providence, R. I., two girls were taken up for smoking cigars on the street and were sent off to the reformatory for eight years. The Philadelphia Times thinks there is something askew in this sort of justice. There are thousands of boys and men who smoke cigars in the streets, and spit all over the pavements as far as they can reach, and who are not locked up even for thirty days.

A religious body having resolved to build a new church the pastor went about begging very zealously, accepting not only the widow's but the child's mite. In the school one sabbath, while instructing the children, he compared himself to a shepherd and then inquired what the latter did with his flock. One bright-eyed little fellow promptly replied: "He shears them."

A great many prefer the latter. [illegible] the other afternoon [illegible] [illegible] a few minutes' talk with the mistress of the house the door opened and the eldest girl, who is a would-be artist, entered. Her head was a wild [illegible] of red frizz, as if she had been indulging in a hay fight; she was dressed in a black satin frock with very short sleeves and rather low neck, and over [illegible] she had a long pink cotton pinafore, such as a child might wear, decorated like an ancient Briton, with patches of various colored paints, with which her hands too, were smeared. She seemed to enjoy art. I do not think the world has ever heard of her or ever will; still, it fills her life.

Catarrhal

[illegible]

Wei De Meyer's Treatise on Catarrh, explains the following important facts:

1. That Catarrhal Colds become a poisonous infection, at first local, and finally constitutional.

2. That, being constitutional, the infection is beyond the reach of mere local remedies.

3. That impurities in the nostrils, are necessarily swallowed into the stomach and inhaled into the lungs, thus poisoning the Digestive, Respiratory and Genito-urinary organs.

4. That Catarrhal virus follows the mucous membrane and causes Deafness, Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhoea, Bronchitis, Leucorrhoea, and Consumption.

5. That Smokes, Douches, Inhalations, and Insoluble Snuffs, cannot possibly remove infectious inflammation from the organs named.

6. That an antidote for Catarrh must possess an inoculative affinity for, and the quality of being absorbed by, the purulent mucous wherever located.

Based upon these plain theories, Dr. Wei De Meyer's Catarrh Cure has proved to be infallible. It not only relieves, it cures Catarrh at any stage. Home testimony:

BEAVERTON

Homestead Tract

FOR SALE ON EASY TERMS,

In Parcels of from One to Twenty Acres.

About 700 Acres of Choice Garden, Pasture and Grain Land in the Charming and Thriving Township of Beaverton.

It is distant from Portland about six miles by the Canyon road, one of the most delightfully romantic of the roads leading out of Portland. The distance by the Westside Railway is about nine miles. The property adjoins the railway depot.

The land is chiefly level, but fringed with gentle undulations, which are destined to be crowned with villa residences as Beaverton grows in favor as a suburban retreat.

The soil is of unrivalled richness, and repays the gardener's toil with fabulous yields of vegetables and fruits.

We invite those who desire to secure a self-supporting homestead, charmingly situated, with easy access to the city by road or rail, to

MAKE AN EARLY SELECTION.

To the industrious gardener one or two acres will offer an ample livelihood.

To the dairy farmer no situation can be more advantageous or accessible.

FOR SUBURBAN HOMES

The convenience, healthfulness and beauty of the situation cannot fail to make the location a favorable one.

FRIDAY MORNING, NOV. 5, 1880.

Sedan in 1880.

Sedan, as a battlefield, may be said to be already obliterated. The wide region over which the struggle raged still remains, but already in these few years have disappeared almost all traces of the tragedy of which it was the theater. The plow has passed over the countless graves whose mounds studded the strangely diversified terrain from Bazeilles to Floneux, from Givonne to Floing. The visitor to Sedan can find now no guide to the battlefield. The English resident who for the first year or two after the battle offered himself in that capacity has abandoned the role for lack of employment, and concentrates himself on his original avocation. I have spoken of the visitors to Sedan, but, indeed, there are now no visitors. "They came very thick for a year or two after the battle," so testifies the hotel waiter, but now we have not once in six months a stranger who desires to see the field of battle."

Sedan itself is fast altering so as scarcely to be recognized by one familiar with it during the war time. Its fortifications are undergoing demolition, and Sedan is now in name, as in effect it had been ever since the introduction of rifled artillery, an open town. Vauban's bastions and curtains were very massive, and their wrought stone faces and cemented backings yield reluctantly; but they are gradually being effaced, and Sedan is opening its lungs and stretching itself beyond the trammels that were wont to inclose it. Ditches are being filled up, and the boulevards are being laid out on their site. As one enters from the railway station through the suburb of Torey, formerly inclosed within the line of circumvallation, he passes stately side streets lined with fine new buildings. Where the German soldiers used to fish in the stagnant moats for chassepots, cuirasses and other spoils of war, solid earth has taken the place of water, and long stretches of black woolen cloths are now lying on the space where once were ranged, row upon row, the hundreds of field guns that the vanquished had surrendered to the victors. The gate from under whose archway the bearer of the flag of truce emerged from the distracted city is gone so completely that the very site is not identified. In the little place inside the bridge over the Meuse, Turenne, in his coat of verdigris, still stands in that uncomfortable attitude on the cannon balls; but the pickaxe of the destroyer is laid at the foundation of the citadel in which the great general was born. There is a new landlord in the Hotel Croix d'Or, a man who nonchalantly tells you that the war was before his time here, and he takes no interest in anything concerning it. The streets swarm with French soldiers; but soldiers smart, natty and consequential, in very different case from the broken miserables who, wolfish with hunger, distracted with horror, mad with conflicting passions, thronged its ghastly thoroughfares and littered its blood-stained open spaces on that other September day when De Wimpfen sullenly put his hand to the articles of capitulation.

Churning in Uruguay.

They had done such a thing as to churn butter before, it appears. Liz went out and brought a bag of rawhide, about as large as a common meal-bag. How clean it was inside, I am sure I do not know; but he turned the cream into it, and poured in new milk enough to fill it two-thirds full; and then he tied it up with a strong strip of hide. M—— stood with a broad grin on his face. I was already too much astonished to make any remarks. Liz now carried the bag out of doors, and then got his horse. Taking his lasso off the saddle, he made one end of it fast to the cream-bag; the other end, as usual, being attached to a ring in the saddle. This done, he got on the horse, and touched spurs to him. Away he went, and at the first jerk that bag went ten feet in the air, and fell with a squanch, close onto the horse's heels. At the next jerk it went higher still. He soon went out of sight, with the bag dancing after him. Sometimes it struck down alongside the horse, and sometimes it struck slap on the animal's rump. M——was convulsed with laughter—at me, I suppose; for I must confess that this upset all my previous ideas of butter-making. In the course of twenty or thirty minutes, Liz came back, the horse looking pretty hot, and the bag very dusty. "Mantequilla" (butter come), said he. He untied the churn, and sure enough there was a good homely chunk of butter in it; and it proved to be very decent butter, too. I asked if that was the way they always churned. They said it was, and Ed declared it was "a dale asier than turnin' a crank." So I respectfully submit the "method" to all our good people up North. Everything needed for it is a sole-leather bag, a clothes-line and a horse.—[Youth's Companion.

Milk as Food.

Unadulterated, undiluted, unskimmed and properly treated milk, taken from a healthy cow in a good condition, and produced by the consumption of healthy and nutritious grasses and other kinds of food, contains within itself, in proper proportions, all the elements necessary to sustain human life through a considerable period of time. Scarcely any other single article of food will do this. When we eat bread and drink milk we eat bread, butter and cheese and drink water—all of them in the best combination and condition to nourish the human system. All things considered good milk is the cheapest kind of food we have for three pints of it, weighing 3¾ pounds and costing 9 cents, contain as much nutriment as one pound of beef, which costs 18 cents. There is no loss in cooking milk, as there is in beef, and there is no bone in it that cannot be eaten; it is simple, palatable, nutritious, healthful, cheap and always ready for use, with or without preparation. This is to say that, chemically, 3.7 pounds of milk is the equivalent of one pound of beef in flesh-forming or nitrogenous constituents and 3.17 pounds of milk is the equivalent of one pound of beef in heat-producing elements or carbo-hydrates. We must therefore assume, from the data offered, that the relative values of beef and milk as human food are as 3¼ to 12¼, or as (in round numbers) 1 to 3½. If milk is 8 cents per quart, then it is the equal in food value to beef at 12½ cents per pound; and vice versa, when beef is at 25 cents per pound, then milk should be 16 cts. per quart, calculated on its food value. We thus see that, at any ruling prices, milk is certainly one of the cheapest, if not the cheapest, food that can be furnished to the family, while all experience is in favor of its healthy qualities.

A Boston gentleman not long since died, leaving his widow nothing but a mortgage for $10,000 on a church. Some of the leading men of the church offered to compromise with her for a small sum, representing to her that the church was poor. She went to a lawyer, however, and was informed that the corporation was very wealthy, and easily able to pay its debts.

In nothing is a purchaser so easily deceived as in cabinet work. If a piece of cabinet furniture is well made, it will last a hundred years or more and still be in fair condition. But if badly made in the first instance, it will be a source of annoyance and expense from the day it is purchased to the not distant period when it is fit only to be banished to the attic or lumber room.

Progress of the Electric Light.

The electric light seems to be coming into use in England almost as fast as in America. It is the Anglo-American Electric Light Company that controls the Jablockoff system, but having become satisfied last winter that the Brush was the better system, it purchased the English patents for $150,000. In the meantime a commission, appointed by Parliament, made a report filling a large volume, which, after months of investigation and a thorough test of the Siemens, Gramme, Wallace and other systems, awarded the Brush light the superiority over all others by 40 per cent. in the results attained. The government immediately cabled the Brush Company at Cleveland an order for $80,000 worth of apparatus. The fact was telegraphed all over the world, and was in the TELEGRAM's Associated Press dispatches last February. Since then the Anglo American Company have sold enough machines to make the aggregate reach nearly 1000 lights. The Government lights are used in the Royal navy, in the ship yards and offices. It requires 80-horse power to drive twenty-seven Siemens lamps, of 2000 candle power each. To drive twenty-seven lamps of the Brush system, requires 24-horse power. It requires a separate machine for each Siemens lamp. One machine drives forty Brush lamps. The greater economy in fuel with the saving in wire and machinery must at once be apparent. The Brush French patents have been bought for $250,000. To run forty Brush lamps requires but thirty-four-horse power. The machines can be run for fifty per cent. less than gas can be manufactured here, and as the plant can be bought for less than one-sixth of the amount expended in expensive pipe systems, it furnishes an inviting field for capital. The wires being run into the stores the same as telegraph wires are run, does away with the expense of making connections, and there is no loss from leakage. The light is being used in churches East, and is said to be advantageous for both churches and large halls, although it does not answer for dramatic performances where at times absolute quiet is required, the carbons occasionally making a slight noise when feeding. It will probably be introduced in churches here, there having been correspondence for that purpose begun with Eastern pastors where the light is used. As nearly all the business houses using light are closed Sunday night, the power can very well be employed for furnishing the electric light to churches.

Already Published.

If it has ever been in print we are innocent, as it comes from that traveling encyclopedia of fun, the drummer. The firm, consisting of two brothers, Jacob and Isaac, in New York, had failed for a large amount, and announced their ability to pay only ten cents on a dollar.—This having been done, Jacob said to Isaac:

"Isaac, dot vos der biggest day's pishness we efer done, hah?"

"I ped you."

"Isaag, ve vill go celebrade. Ve vill pig deener by der Delmonigo, hah?"

"All rhiad."

They went to Delmonico's and ordered a sumptuous meal, for which they were charged $15.

Said Jacob, presenting a $5 bill to the cashier:

"Gif me dree dollars und a half in shange."

"How can that be?" asked the cashier. "Your bill is $15, and that is but $5."

"Oxactly, dot's rhiad. You see ve vos baengrubt, undt pay not no more as den cends on efery tawler, ain't it Isaag?"

But the cashier failed to see it that way, and sending for an officer he made Jacob produce the correct amount.

"Got vill bunish you for does," said Jacob to the cashier. "He bunish you for sheat a man who only gan pay den cend on der tawler, ain't it, Isaag?"

Isaac said nothing, and the brothers started out Jacob still assuring the cashier that "Got vill bunish you for dees dings," and when they got into the street, Isaac said cautiously to Jacob:

"Yacob, you vas rhiad. Got vill bunish dod man Yacob," he continued, running his hand in the breast pocket of his overcoat and pulling out something, "Got haf a ready bunished dod maen, ver I got me von tozent hees zilver shoons."

Much Plugging.

According to the London Medical Record, an American physician, Dr. Farrar, has calculated that about half a ton of pure gold is annually packed away into American teeth; and he goes on to assert that, at this rate, within 300 years as much pure gold will have been buried with the teeth into which it is packed as there is now in the whole gold circulation of the earth. Perhaps Dr. Farrar is right, for half a ton of gold is only 17,920 ounces avoirdupois, and supposing that one American in a hundred has his teeth stopped with gold, that would give each an average amount of annual stopping of something like one-sixteenth of an ounce, which is not, perhaps, a very extravagant amount. But we are not inclined to spend wonder on these trite calculations of how much gold all the stuffed teeth of the ages may be eventually supposed to contain, any more than on how many wasted minutes all the useless calculations of the ages may be supposed to have accounted for. You might just as well calculate how many yards of artery there are pulsing away at a Guildhall dinner, or how many multiples of the present Lord Mayor would reach to the moon. It is always easy to astonish people by manipulating the insignificant facts of life with the aid of the multiplication table but the astonishment is barren, not to say a little imbecile.—[The Spectator.

A New Yorker predicts that "the time is near at hand when a race of honey bees will be introduced to the American people who have no stingers." But the American people who have no stingers—who and where are they? Or, rather, who and where are the American people who have stingers? Perhaps the American people who have no stingers will object to making the acquaintance of a new race of honey bees.—[Norwich Herald.

An ingenious prisoner in a Western jail contrived to make a watch out of a broom that had been left in his cell. The broom's tick probably suggested the idea to him.

In the real market monetary matters are in about the same condition of a full supply and of quiet ease which has prevailed for some time past. The demand is not extended over many legitimate. A firm belief in the stability of our form of government alone could have kept business matters in such an undisturbed condition during the time in which the country has been undergoing such excitement politically. Upon the issue the country is apparently to be congratulated and though politics are properly excluded from this column, it can be asserted with propriety, that the success of the party which has at least had some hand in restoring reasonable confidence and prosperity to the country after a war which unsettled everything. That any bad results will follow the election, as far as business and finances are concerned, will not be claimed by the honest partisan of any name.

Domestic Produce.

In the wheat market the tendency generally has been toward greater firmness, with an advance at most of the grain centers. The vessels at hand are filling up with good dispatch and buyers continue to accept freely the fair lots offering. Sales, however are not of any very large single lots as holders are strengthened by the reports from abroad, and only let go at current offers under necessity from some directions. Charters are apparently at a standstill, which in some measure accounts for the slight improvement in prices. Other domestic products are in fair request at our quotations, and now that the worry and uncertainty of the political contest is ended we shall expect that more attention will be given and more life and activity imparted to business in its varied departments. Quotations for the local market given are generally freely paid.

REAL ESTATE MARKET.

The following special report of the real estate market is furnished THE OREGONIAN by Clark & Upton, real estate agents:

We have declined furnishing a report on the real estate business of the city during the past four weeks, because the transactions have been very light and without items of material interest. These facts are accounted for by the disturbance of the public mind by the presidential election. Comparison with past years shows that real estate dealing (probably more than any other business) is always unfavorably influenced by the same cause. The buying of lands and houses, to the great majority of investors, is an event which can occur but once or twice in a life time; hence the operation is approached with much care and thought. For this reason all public matters, which largely absorb the attention of the people, are greatly prejudicial to the moving of real estate. Such has been preeminently the case on the present occasion. The unprecedented prosperity of the country, appreciated in almost every state and territory of the union; the re-establishment of the national credit at home and abroad upon a basis the like of which has never been witnessed, are circumstances which have inspired confidence in the value of real estate, which has been felt from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the boundaries of Canada to the confines of Mexico. The possibility of changes being made which would remodel the whole policy of government and possibly depreciate the public credit has suspended real estate operations on every hand. Such have been our advices from every quarter. In Portland, property has suffered no decline, but operations have been arrested and the market has been almost at a standstill. In view of the magnificent prospects of the state and the numerous railroad enterprises in progress, all of which will largely contribute to the development of the resources of the state and build up the wealth of Portland, it would appear that no change of government should shake the confidence of our residents. Nevertheless the policy of investors has been to wait. Happily the doubt and uncertainty is now ended, and we anticipate a speedy and decided revival of real estate business.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

Full Review of the Commercial Situation.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—The Commercial News says: The wheat market, both here and in England, showed some improvement yesterday. Here holders were firm in their views. Shippers were more disposed to pay figures asked, and a large amount of grain changed hands.

In the merchandise market there was some activity, as a large business is just now being done with the interior; prices were without change.

The election excitement had by no means subsided yesterday and little else was discussed.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The excitement consequent upon election has had a very depressing effect upon the freight market, and very little is doing. The C. Chapman is the only loading vessel on berth, but will not get away before the 10th inst. Rates remain steady at last quotations. Tonnage is more plenty than for a long time, arrivals having been numerous, with more coming. Van Vleck has taken the Hagerstown and will have her on the berth early next week. The Columbus will also go on one of the lines. The Merom will load for Portland, taking 1000 tons of railroad iron as a portion of her cargo.

Business in most markets has been quiet.

Wheat—Dull and ½c lower.

Barley—Active and 1@2c higher, partly speculation; extra bright Canada, $1 10, ungraded, 92@95.

Provisions—Neglected.

Lard—10@12½c.

Rio Coffee—Dull and ½c lower.

Refined Sugars—Fair demand and steady.

Hides—Better demand and firm; sale of 3000 California at 23½@24½c 60 days.

Turpentine—Quiet and steady.

Petroleum—Unchanged.

Home Produce Market.

FLOUR—The market shows a fair degree of activity, and stocks are kept well down. Quotations for round lots $4 75 for standard, $4 25@4 50 for good country brands.

WHEAT—Market has an appreciating tendency; good valley $1 45 is offered; Eastern Oregon 2½@5 cents less. Business fair.

OATS—Quiet; milling $1 30@1 35 ℔ cental; feed $1 10@1 20.

WOOL—Very little doing; quotations, Valley, 22@27c; Eastern Oregon 16@21c.

HAY—The supply is still very light and demand brisk. Baled timothy $18; jobbing $20.

MILL FEED—The demand is good and the supply moderate. Quotations, Middlings $20@22½, shorts $18; chop feed $18@30; bran $14@15.

CURED MEATS—Market firm. Quotations—Hams, Oregon sugar cured 16@16c; eastern 16½@17½; bacon 13½@14c; shoulders 10@11.

LARD—Market steady at 12@12½c in kegs; 13@14 in tins, and 13¼@14½c in pails.

CHICKENS—Spring, $2½@3, according to size; full grown $3½@4.

DRIED APPLES—Market fairly supplied, sun dried, 8@9c; Plummer dried, 11@12½c.

DRIED PLUMS—Dull; with pits, 6c; pitless, 12½@15c for sun dried; 14@16c for machine plums.

POTATOES—Market rather better at 75@80c per 100 lbs.

HIDES—Market firm at 16c for first-class dry; 7@8c for greeny culls, ⅓ off.

BUTTER—Fancy, 32½c; good to choice, 27½@30c; fair, 25c; other grades what they will bring. In bulk, 18@22½c; in brine, 22½@32½c.

ONIONS—Firm at 1 00 ℔ cental.

EGGS—Firm and not very plenty at 35c ℔ doz.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast.

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

such as SPERMATORRHEA or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and something from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

TO

Sportsmen and Tourists.

THE UPPER CASCADES AND VICINITY, AT the present season, offers the finest inducements of perhaps any locality within a radius of 200 miles of Portland. Lake, brook and mountain trout await the disciples of the "gentle art," whilst the followers of Nimrod can fool with the festive bear and frolicsome cougar to their heart's content, whilst deer are not unknown.

An elegant and comfortable hotel (The Borthwick House) is now established, with Portland prices, and reliable guides, dogs, boats, guns, and everything necessary for an outfit, can be had within ten minutes.

The glorious mountain scenery, elegant river views, and enormous government works, alone, will amply repay a visit.

A BROKEN COMBINATION.

It is probable that the result of the late election will do more than break up the solid south. It is likely also to dissolve the hitherto enormous democratic majority of New York city. That majority has long been too heavy to hold together permanently. Its cohesion hitherto has depended on political conditions now passing away. In 1840 the vote of the two parties, then whig and democratic, was about equally divided. Two years before, Mr. Seward, running for the governorship as a whig, carried the city against Marcy, democrat. In 1844 the city gave Polk less than 2000 over Clay. In 1848 Taylor carried the city against Cass by nearly 10,000, though VanBuren drew off over 5000 democratic votes. From this time the democratic majority of the city began to grow. Pierce carried the city over Scott by over 11,000 majority. In 1856 there were three parties, and Buchanan's plurality over Fremont exceeded 24,000. The city went against Lincoln in 1860 by 29,000, and in 1864 by 37,000. From that time the democratic majority gradually increased up to 1876, when Tilden carried the city by 54,000,—a majority never equalled before or since. It fell in the recent election to a little over 41,000. This is still a great majority, but the signs are propitious for its further reduction by its further dissensions. To a large degree during late years it has been held together by skillful politicians who hoped to make it the potent ally of the south to rule the country. But the question arose among the leaders who should be first in wielding the power of this prodigious majority; and this struggle which began actively four years ago laid the foundations of a quarrel which is now almost certain to make the great majority a thing of the past. It is among the certainties that the south will not be solid much longer. Judicious management on the part of the republicans should prevent renewal of the alliance between the south and the great democratic majority of New York city. When they cease to depend on each other each will cease to be solid. This defeat means likely, therefore, to break up a political combination of the most powerful kind, which has existed for the past twenty-five years. From the time when the south grew solid on the slavery question till now the great democratic majority of New York city has been at its back. There promises now to be a new departure in politics which will put an end at once to this alliance and to the solidity of its parts.

BROUGHT TO BOOK.

It was announced not long ago that Dr. Thomas, a well known Methodist clergyman of Chicago, who has officiated for years past at the Centenary and other churches in that city, had been arraigned for preaching unorthodox doctrines. He has been in fact, virtually suspended from relations with the church. He is an able preacher, and will now take charge of an independent congregation in Chicago. Formerly any expression of heretical opinions led to death at the stake. Times are now so changed that it means a rich congregation, light work, a sort of sensational notoriety and a salary of $10,000 a year. The church can, of course, spare Dr. Thomas,—and in fact it has no alternative but to spare him, since he has been preaching doctrines which, if tolerated, would be the death of orthodox Methodism. In such a case there is no middle way. Dr. Thomas claims that his course is in the interest of freedom in theology, and he insists that the recent legislation of the Methodist church has been backward towards ecclesiasticism instead of forward toward intellectual liberty. He claims for himself and for all others in the Methodist denomination the right to think each for himself, the right of each man to his own opinion on questions which are of necessity subject to individual opinion. Under the vow which he took when he entered the Methodist ministry, he claims the right as an honorable man to speak his honest opinions, and still stand in a Methodist pulpit. There was no law, he says by which he could be tried for the offense, if offense it be, of thinking for himself, until the recent session of the triennial conference at Cincinnati. That body amended the Methodist law so that a man to be "orthodox" must not only accept the articles of faith of the Methodist church, which Dr. Thomas says he does accept, but also the "standard authors," as Wesley and Watson, and the views of these last Dr. Thomas distinctly declared in his late defense, that, law or no law, he did not and could not believe and would not teach. He does not believe the time-honored view of the atonement, that Jesus Christ died as a penalty for sin, although he does believe in the atoning power of Jesus' life and example. He does not believe in the time-honored doctrine of the eternal punishment of the wicked in a lake of literal fire and he does not believe in the doctrine that the bible is all inspired. Utterance of doctrines like these could not but precipitate a conflict. The matter is of importance only as a feature of the conflict between free thought in theology and the authority of ecclesiasticism. Like a great many other preachers brought to book for uttering heretical opinions, Dr. Thomas appeals from the church to the circle of his personal admirers, and as he has decided ability he will discourse to them once or twice every Sunday for a big salary, while they take comfort in the belief that he has found for them a broader way unto life than that described in the sermon on the mount.

SORRIEST NONSENSE.

It is hardly necessary to give serious attention to the twaddle from democratic sources about disputing the election of General Garfield. For it is a fashion with an element of that party whenever it is beaten to declare that it will not submit; and some little time is required on every occasion to get over this vaporing. Not all members of the party talk in this absurd way, since there are many who have too much sense for anything of the kind; but the noisy and violent ones always go it loosely for a while, till the vapors work off and they get easy again. The talk of disputing the election of General Garfield is among the wildest of these revolutionary fantasies. Of course it is not seriously entertained. General Garfield's election will stand, and there will be no kind of dispute about it in congress or elsewhere. Any party attempting such a proceeding would be swept out of existence by an uprising like that which followed the assault on Sumter. The people have not erected and sustained this government at such prodigious cost to permit any revolutionary proceedings against it. Congress will declare the vote in February, and the result will be the decided electoral majority for Garfield and Arthur which was intended by the people when they cast their votes on Tuesday. Men here and there may make fools of themselves by idle talk of questioning the result; but great fools as they are, even they will soon become ashamed of it.

From later figures we still see no reason to doubt that the republican majority in this state will be about 500. Slight gains and losses, as compared with previous reports and estimates, are shown, but they just about balance each other. West of the mountains the clear republican majority will hardly be under 1400, and the eastern counties can not possibly overcome it.

The democratic split in Tennessee has resulted in the election of a republican governor, a gain of two republican congressmen, and perhaps a majority in the legislature and the consequent gain of a United States senator. This starts the break-up of a solid south in very good shape. It will be fortunate for the whole country if it really proves the beginning of the end.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

HARPER'S GEOGRAPHIES.

Two new manuals of geography, embracing a course for schools, have recently been published by Harper & Brothers. The first is an introductory book, clearly and simply written, and illustrated with all the beauty which characterizes the Harper publications. It is a book to be put into the hands of first scholars, striking the mean between that affected simplicity which runs to silliness and too great an abstruseness for beginners. The second book is still more completely a model of what a school geography should be. Its maps and illustrations are unsurpassed, while its text, written with admirable clearness, embraces all the late results of geographical investigation. Moreover its arrangement is upon a strictly scientific system. Its maps show first, political divisions, and next, physical characteristics. For example, we have first, a map of North America, exhibiting the political divisions of the continent, followed by maps of its several divisions subdivided into physical groups, the different characteristics of which are shown by colors. Division of the United States into sections and groups is based upon certain facts of the physical geography of the country, and is far simpler and more comprehensive than the method of division heretofore employed. These general characteristics run through the whole manual. To this edition is added a special treatise on the geography of the Pacific states and territories, illustrated with new maps and engravings, forming a new and most valuable feature. These books, it seems to us, could be most profitably introduced into our schools. The special account of the geography of Oregon is the best ever written, and the maps are the perfection of art. There is to be a meeting of the county superintendents in a few days to make selection of text books, and we understand that Harper's Geographies will be commended to their attention.

OTHER SCHOOL BOOKS.

Milne's Practical Arithmetic, published by Jones Bros. & Co., has the endorsement of teachers as the very best manual of arithmetic ever published. We have heard it specially commended by the city superintendent of the Portland schools. Redpath's History of the United States—same publishers as above—has special merits as a school history, and is being very rapidly introduced. Harper & Bros. also publish a Language Primer and New Language Lessons, both of which are being rapidly introduced in the schools of many parts of the country. A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco, are agents for all the above publications.

LITERARY NOTICES.

"Byron" is the latest of the series of "English Men of Letters," edited by John Mory. The writer, Mr. John Nichol, has done his work well, giving a good account of the poet's social, intellectual, and moral career and character. The information is correct, and as to the main points, comprehensive, and is presented in a lively style. Nevertheless, we feel a lack of any decided originality in the biographer. His literary criticism is either brief or noncommittal, restricting itself often to the repetition of the ideas of others. He refers to Mrs. Beecher Stowe without mentioning her name as the author of a hideous and reckless accusation, which was not sustained by any reasonable proof, and recoils to the disgrace of its author. Published by Harpers.

The fourth and last volume of the "History of the English People," by John Richard Green, published by Harper & Brothers, has appeared. It treats of the Revolution and of Modern England, the narrative of events opening with the fall of the Stuarts and closing with the fall of Napoleon Bonaparte. In some respects the present volume will be a disappointment. There is less of the dramatic element, less of brilliant word-painting, less of careful and painstaking portraiture than there are in the previous volumes. The style, too, is, it seems to us, less picturesque, less free in its movement, less apt and brilliant. The fact is, Mr. Green is one of those artists whose mind is fond of dwelling on the far past. The sense of distance, the charm of perspective, have a powerful influence over him. He loves to paint life as it existed in ages far remote; to portray the movements of humanity as they appear to him seen through the mists of centuries. More recent events fail to quicken his intellect to the fullest measure of its capacity. What happened within the memory of men still living seems tame and commonplace. It must not be inferred from this that the last volume is an indifferent piece of literary workmanship. It is a monument of patient and conscientious labor. The author possesses a temper eminently judicial. He is always fair, always candid, always dispassionate and almost always just. We look in vain for evidence of partisanship or of unjust religious bias.

A memoir of Rev. Sydney Smith, by his daughter Lady Holland, is added to Harper's Franklin Square Library series. Sydney Smith is so good a subject that a biography of him written with intelligence and knowledge could scarcely fail to contain many interesting passages. Lady Holland had a large fund of information about her father, and she is a bright woman with a pleasant literary style; but she has crammed her pages with an immense number of his, and even his wife's letters, many of which were trivial at the time, and when thrust before the public fifty years after their time, almost justify a little profanity on the part of the critic as well as of the general reader.

Harper & Brothers have also recently published "Thomas Moore, his Life and Works," by A. J. Symington. Moore was one of those sunny characters who gain the affection of all whom they meet, and whose social triumphs are endless and brilliant. Rare good fortune attended his movements, and, indeed, it does not now seem as if any other period or surroundings could have been more congenial. After his death a reaction set in and it became fashionable in many circles to deride his poetic claims. With truer judgment it is now acknowledged that Moore's lyric powers, as shown in his musical "Irish Melodies," and in parts of "Lalla Rookh" are of the highest order. Few writers have better understood their own strength and weakness. Moore felt rather than knew, his own limitations, and wrought with exquisite delicacy within those boundaries. He had a love for his work, and a power of severe application to the duties of authorship for which few have given him credit. Mr. Symington, who is a Scotchman, and who has been a life-long friend of Mary Howitt, does not lay claim to any originality in the little olive colored volume under consideration. From reliable sources he has carefully culled the most pertinent and entertaining events in the poet's life, selected a number of illustrative extracts from his different works, drawn largely upon his diary and quoted freely from the opinions of Moore's commentators. All these are not arranged under so many different heads but are informally introduced whenever occasion offers and chronological order requires. By this method the reader is enabled to follow the poet's life step by step, from the early days of his Dublin schooling up to the climacteric of his social and literary success and down to the tenderly pitiful scenes of his death-bed, to note his labors, read the verses which gained him his praises and the censures of his critics.

"The Experience of a Barrister and Confessions of an Attorney," by Samuel Warren, author of "Ten Thousand a Year," is received.—Estes & Lauriat, Boston, publishers. Ten Thousand a Year was an exceedingly popular novel years ago, and still finds a steady class of readers who have almost made it a classic. Nothing that the author has published since has sustained the reputation he made by his first book, though almost all his work bears evidence of the same dramatic faculty and fascinating style. This last book is a collection of short tales founded upon singular, exciting or tragic incidents in the practice of a London barrister early in the century. Some of them are a severe reflection upon the bloody penal code and cruel justice of the last Georges. Almost all of them are entertaining, and some of them so fascinating as to make their brevity lamented. Nearly all of the stories are mere sketches.

"Samuel Lover, a Biographical Sketch," by A. J. Symington, also published by Harpers, is a charming little book. The author had excellent material, and made very effective use of it. He has inserted many of the most humorous and attractive of Lover's productions, in prose and verse, with enough story to give connection and harmony, and to supply all the biographical information about the subject wanted by the general reader. The book is sure of wide recognition. Lover was an inimitable and original humorist, and at the same time a literary artist of the first class.

Mr. Sheldon Amos, an English barrister, has printed a treatise on "Political and Legal Remedies for War." The discussion is curious, and at the same time able. The method is severely logical. Mr. Amos is as particular about his heads and subheads and all the minute divisions of the subject as a Calvinist divine could possibly be. Thus he considers first the "Three Legitimate Aims of Laws of War:" (1) To Mitigate Its Severity. (2) To Reduce Its Frequency. (3) To Pave the Way to Its Abolition. Abolition, he says, is not impossible because, (1) Private wars, judicial combat, and dueling have disappeared; (2) War itself has undergone a sweeping change of character; (3) The progress of civilization is antagonistic to war; (4) Economic facts newly recognized are against it; (5) Public sentiment is increasing by influence by a Diffusion of Education; (6) The Press, through its correspondents, reveals what war actually is; (7) The growth of liberal principles; (8) Philosophic theories antagonistic to war; (9) Religious principles antagonistic to war; (10) Habits of international cooperation and association. The above is the topical division of but a single chapter. Chapter II. treats of the Causes of Modern European Wars; Chapter III. of Some Political Remedies for war; Chapter IV. of Legal Remedies for War.

Mr. Amos has a smooth and flowing style, and seems to be thoroughly master of the subject. We cannot better illustrate his manner than by the quotation of one or two characteristic passages. Speaking of the recognition of economic facts as a means of preventing war he says:

> The notion of the benefit to all states of the wealth and prosperity of each, and the loss to all caused by the poverty or depression of any one, marks a complete transformation of the aspect under which foreign nations have, up to very recent times, been invariably regarded, and in which they are still regarded in only partially civilized communities. It is not confined to purely mercantile matters. In every field of activity and interest it translates rivals into co-operative laborers, and jealous foes into hopeful and sympathetic allies. It has manifold direct influences on social life as between the citizens of different states. Not only does the stimulus given to trade directly promote and endlessly multiply association of all sorts, but one sort of association always produces another, and constant familiarity begets friendliness and banishes suspicion and vague dislike. It thus may be expected that the new era of free trade will have consequences to the relations between the citizens—and ultimately the governments—of different states of a kind wholly new and incalculable.

The doctrine of the equality of states as a cause of war is thus considered:

> The abstract doctrine that "all states are equal" goes a very little way, of itself, in solving the political problems of international life, and preventing the sort of quibbles and evasions which the interpretation of the doctrine itself must needs evolve, and which may be, and has been, the fruitful source of overbearing evil. The difficulties in the way of solving purely legal questions of the sort above described as arising between states are inherently great.

The chapter on standing armies considers the subject not only in its broad aspects, but in detail, giving the terms and manner of enlistment in the principal European countries, and discussing the merits and defects of the various systems.

Mr. Amos' book is "suggestive" in the best sense of that much abused term. Few will rise from the reading of it without larger views of the laws of war.

The above books may all be had of A. L. Bancroft & Co., Market street, San Francisco.

That much attention has been paid of late years to the rearing and improvement of superior breeds of cattle, under the general name of shorthorns, both in the United States and Europe is of course known to all. Many of the British gentry and noblemen of prominence now engaged in rearing these fine cattle have largely recruited their herds by importations from America, and are still buyers in the American market. The most important sale of shorthorns that ever took place in the United Kingdom was made recently at Underley, in Westmoreland. The number sold was seventy-four and the proceeds of the sale aggregated over $55,000. The queen of the herd was sold to a nobleman for 2000 guineas.

The complete return from Columbia county shows a republican majority of 81. This, for that little county, is an extraordinary gain. It is the first time Columbia county ever gave a republican majority for president. The gain, as compared with June, is 105. It is due largely to the intelligent efforts of Mr. Geo. W. McBride, through whose work as an organizer and whose persuasive manner as a speaker not a few democrats were brought into the republican ranks. Work like that done by Mr. McBride is not only a credit to himself but an honor to his party.

PATRONIZE
HOME INDUSTRIES!
PIONEER
White Lead.

REASONS WHY IT SHOULD BE PREFERRED TO ALL OTHERS:

First—It is STRICTLY PURE. It is WHITER, is FINER GROUND, is FRESH, has BETTER COVERING POWER, is MORE DURABLE and is LOWER PRICED than any foreign or imported brands.

The IMPORTED LEADS are OLD, are DRY and HARD, COVERED WITH SKINS, The OIL IS SOAKED INTO THE WOOD, and a very LARGE QUANTITY OF OIL, which is HIGHER COST than the Lead, MUST BE ADDED to make them fit for use, and thus making it cost, at even market prices, at least 10 per cent. more than the PIONEER.

Second—The PIONEER LEAD is strictly a HOME MANUFACTURE. EVERY DOLLAR SPENT IN ITS MANUFACTURE IS DISTRIBUTED ON THIS COAST to the MINERS, SMELTERS and REFINERS, MECHANICS, FARMERS AND LABORERS.

The LEAD ORE is mined on this coast.

The PIG LEAD is smelted and refined on this coast.

The POTS, MACHINERY and other appliances are made on this coast.

The MECHANICS and LABORERS are our own population.

The SEED from which the OIL is extracted is GROWN on this coast

The OIL is MANUFACTURED on this coast by the PACIFIC OIL WORKS, and of a quality superior to any made elsewhere. GUARANTEED PURE and FREE from ADULTERATION with cotton seed, mustard seed and Fish Oil, SO COMMON with ALL THE EASTERN OILS IMPORTED.

The manufacture of the PIONEER WHITE LEAD EMPLOYS constantly ONE HUNDRED MEN.

The manufacture of the Oil by the PACIFIC OIL WORKS EMPLOYS constantly FIFTY MEN.

THE MINING, SMELTING, REFINING, FOUNDRIES, MACHINE & IRON WORKS, POTTERIES, FARMERS and other dependencies, EMPLOY, in addition, an ARMY OF MEN, all CONSUMERS, contributing to each other's welfare.

The FOREIGN or IMPORTED BRANDS of Lead and Oil CONTRIBUTE NOTHING to the WELFARE or PROSPERITY of THIS COMMUNITY; on the contrary, the PATRONAGE OF THEM results in the RETIREMENT from the State of YOUR CAPITAL and DEPRIVES THE MANY classes aforementioned of SUPPORT.

Every dollar spent for HOME MANUFACTURES, and one so essentially a home manufacture as the PIONEER WHITE LEAD, ADDS to the DEVELOPMENT and WEALTH of the COAST, and is a PUBLIC GOOD.

A BROKEN COMBINATION

It is probable that the result of the late election will be more than to break up the solid south. It is likely also to dissolve the hitherto enormous democratic majority of New York city. That majority has held the south bound together in partnership. Its cohesion hitherto has depended on political conditions now passing away. In 1840 the vote of the two parties then whig and democratic was about equally divided. Two years before, Mr Seward running for the governorship as a whig carried the city against Marcy, democrat. In 1844 the city gave Polk less than 2000 over Clay. In 1848 Taylor carried the city against Cass by nearly 10 000 though VanBuren drew off over 5000 democratic votes. From this time the democratic majority of the city began to grow. Pierce carried the city over Scott by over 11 000 majority. In 1856 there were three parties and Buchanan's plurality over Fremont exceeded 24 000. The city went against Lincoln in 1860 by 29 000, and in 1864 by 37 000. From that time the democratic majority gradually increased up to 1876 when Tilden carried the city by 54 000—a majority never equalled before or since. It fell in the recent election to a little over 41,000. This is still a great majority, but the signs are propitious for its further reduction by its further dissensions. To a large degree during late years it has been held together by skillful politicians who hoped to make it the potent ally of the south to rule the country. But the question arose among the leaders who should be first in wielding the power of this prodigious majority, and the struggle which began actively four years ago laid the foundations of a quarrel which is now almost certain to make the great majority a thing of the past. It is among the certainties that the south will not be solid much longer. Judicious management on the part of the republicans should prevent renewal of the alliance between the south and the great democratic majority of New York city. When they cease to depend on each other each will cease to be solid. This defeat means likely, therefore, to break up a political combination of the most powerful kind, which has existed for the past twenty-five years. From the time when the south grew solid on the slavery question till now the great democratic majority of New York city has been at its back. There promises now to be a new departure in politics which will put an end at once to this alliance and to the solidity of its parts.

BROUGHT TO BOOK.

It was announced not long ago that Dr. Thomas, a well known Methodist clergyman of Chicago, who has officiated for years past at the Centenary and other churches in that city, had been arraigned for preaching unorthodox doctrines. He has been in fact, virtually suspended from relations with the church. He is an able preacher, and will now take charge of an independent congregation in Chicago. Formerly any expression of heretical opinions led to death at the stake. Times are now so changed that it means a rich congregation light work, a sort of sensational notoriety and a salary of $10,000 a year. The church can, of course, spare Dr Thomas,—and in fact it has no alternative but to spare him, since he has been preaching doctrines which, if tolerated would be the death of orthodox Methodism. In such a case there is no middle way. Dr Thomas claims that his course is in the interest of freedom in theology, and he insists that the recent legislation of the Methodist church has been backward towards ecclesiasticism instead of forward toward intellectual liberty. He claims for himself and for all others in the Methodist denomination the right to think each for himself, the right of each man to his own opinion on questions which are of necessity subject to individual opinion. Under the vow which he took when he entered the Methodist ministry, he claims the right as an honorable man to speak his honest opinions, and still stand in a Methodist pulpit. There was no law, he says, by which he could be tried for the offense, if offense it be, of thinking for himself, until the recent session of the triennial conference at Cincinnati. That body amended the Methodist law so that a man to be "orthodox" must not only accept the articles of faith of the Methodist church, which Dr. Thomas says he does accept, but also the "standard authors," as Wesley and Watson, and the views of these last Dr. Thomas distinctly declared in his late defense that, law or no law, he did not and could not believe and would not teach. He does not believe the time-honored view of the atonement that Jesus Christ died as a penalty for sin, although he does believe in the atoning power of Jesus' life and example. He does not believe in the time-honored doctrine of the eternal punishment of the wicked in a lake of literal fire, and he does not believe in the doctrine that the bible is all inspired. Utterance of doctrines like these could not but precipitate a conflict. The matter is of importance only as a feature of the conflict between free thought in theology and the authority of ecclesiasticism. Like a great many other preachers brought to book for uttering heretical opinions, Dr. Thomas appeals from the church to the circle of his personal admirers, and as he has decided ability he will discourse to them once or twice every Sunday for a big salary, while they take comfort in the belief that he has found for them a broader way unto life than that described in the sermon on the mount.

SORRIEST NONSENSE.

It is hardly necessary to give serious attention to the twaddle from democratic sources about disputing the election of General Garfield. For it is a fashion with an element of that party whenever it is beaten to declare that it will not submit, and some little time is required on every occasion to get over this vaporing. Not all members of the party talk in this absurd way, since there are many who have too much sense for anything of the kind, but the noisy and violent ones always go it loosely for a while till the vapors work off and they get easy again. The talk of disputing the election of General Garfield is among the wildest of these revolutionary fantasies. Of course it is not seriously entertained. General Garfield's election will stand and there will be no kind of dispute about it in congress or elsewhere. Any party attempting such a proceeding would be swept out of existence by an uprising like that which followed the assault on Sumter. The people have not erected and sustained this government at such prodigious cost to permit any revolutionary proceedings against it. Congress will declare the vote in February and the result will be the decided electoral majority for Garfield and Arthur which was intended by the people when they cast their votes on Tuesday. Men here and there may make fools of themselves by idle talk of questioning the result but great fools as they are even they will soon become ashamed of it.

From later figures we still see no reason to doubt that the republican majority in this state will be about 500. Slight gains and losses as compared with previous reports and estimates are shown but they just about balance each other. West of the mountains the clear republican majority will hardly be under 1400 and the eastern counties can not possibly overcome it.

The democratic split in Tennessee has resulted in the election of a republican governor, a gain of two republican congressmen, and perhaps a majority in the legislature and the consequent gain of a United States senator. This starts the break-up of a solid south in very good shape. It will be fortunate for the whole country if it really proves the beginning of the end.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

HARPER'S GEOGRAPHIES

Two new manuals of geography embracing a new [illegible] for schools have recently been published by Harper & Brothers. The first is an [illegible] and simply written and illustrated with all the beauty which characterizes the Harper publications. It is a book to put in the hands of the [illegible], striking the mean between that affected simplicity which runs to silliness and too great an abstruseness for beginners. The [illegible] book is [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] what a school geography should be. Its maps and illustrations are unsurpassed, while its text is written with a [illegible] clearness and gives all the latest results of geographical investigation. Moreover its arrangement is upon a strictly scientific system. Its maps show first political divisions and next physical characteristics. For example we have first a map of North America exhibiting the political divisions of the continent, followed by maps of its several divisions subdivided into physical groups, the different characteristics of which are shown by colors. Divisions of the United States and sections and groups are based upon certain facts of the physical geography of the country and is far simpler and more comprehensive than the method of division heretofore employed. This general characteristic runs through the whole manual. To this edition is added a special treatise on the geography of the Pacific states and territories illustrated with new maps and engravings forming a new and most valuable feature. These books it seems to us could be most profitably introduced into our schools. The special account of the geography of Oregon is the best ever written and the maps are the perfection of art. There is to be a meeting of the county superintendents in a few days to make selection of text books and we understand that Harper's Geographies will be commended to their attention.

OTHER SCHOOL BOOKS

Milne's Practical Arithmetic published by Jones Bros & Co has the endorsement of teachers as the very best manual of arithmetic ever published. We have heard it specially commended by the city superintendent of the Portland schools. Redpath's History of the United States—same publishers as above—has special merits as a school history and is being very rapidly introduced. Harper & Bros also publish a Language Primer and New Language Lessons, both of which are being rapidly introduced in the schools of many parts of the country. A L Bancroft & Co San Francisco are agents for all the above publications.

LITERARY NOTICES

"Byron" is the latest of the series of "English Men of Letters," edited by John Mory. The writer, Mr. John Nichol has done his work well, giving a good account of the poet's social intellectual and moral career and character. The information is correct, and as to the main points, comprehensive, and is presented in a lively style. Nevertheless, we feel a lack of any decided originality in the biographer. His literary criticism is either brief or noncommittal, restricting itself often to the repetition of the ideas of others. He refers to Mrs Beecher Stowe without mentioning her name as the author of a hideous and reckless accusation which was not sustained by any reasonable proof and recoils to the disgrace of its author. Published by Harpers.

The fourth and last volume of the "History of the English People" by John Richard Green published by Harper & Brothers, has appeared. It treats of the Revolution and of Modern England the narrative of events opening with the fall of the Stuarts and closing with the fall of Napoleon Bonaparte. In some respects the present volume will be a disappointment. There is less of the dramatic element, less of brilliant word-painting, less of careful and pains-taking portraiture than there are in the previous volumes. The style, too, as it seems to us, less picturesque, less free in its movement, less pot and brilliant. The fact is Mr Green is one of those artists whose mind is fond of dwelling on the far past. The sense of distance, the charm of perspective, have a powerful influence over him. He loves to paint life as it existed in ages far remote, to portray the movements of humanity as they appear to him seen through the mists of centuries. More recent events fail to quicken his intellect to the fullest measure of its capacity. What happened within the memory of men still living seems tame and commonplace. It must not be inferred from this that the last volume is an indifferent piece of literary workmanship. It is a monument of patient and conscientious labor. The author possesses a temper eminently judicial. He is always fair, always candid, always dispassionate and almost always just. We look in vain for evidence of partisanship or of unjust religious bias.

A memoir of Rev. Sydney Smith by his daughter Lady Holland, is added to Harper's Franklin Square Library series. Sydney Smith is so good a subject that a biography of him written with intelligence and knowledge could scarcely fail to contain many interesting passages. Lady Holland had a large fund of information about her father, and she is a bright woman with a pleasant literary style, but she has crammed her pages with an immense number of his, and even his wife's letters, many of which were trivial at the time and when thrust before the public fifty years after their time, almost justify a little profanity on the part of the critic as well as of the general reader.

Harper & Brothers have also recently published "Thomas Moore, his Life and Works" by A. J. Symington. Moore was one of those sunny characters who gain the affection of all whom they meet, and whose social triumphs are endless and brilliant. Rare good fortune attended his movements, and indeed, it does not now seem as if any other period or surroundings could have been more congenial. After his death a reaction set in and it became fashionable in many circles to deride his poetic claims. With truer judgment it is now acknowledged that Moore's lyric powers as shown in his musical "Irish Melodies," and in parts of "Lalla Rookh" are of the highest order. Few writers have better understood their own strength and weakness. Moore felt rather than knew, his own limitations and wrought with exquisite delicacy within those boundaries. He had a love for his work, and a power of severe application to the duties of authorship for which few have given him credit. Mr. Symington, who is a Scotchman, and who has been a life-long friend of Mary Howitt, does not lay claim to any originality in the little olive colored volume under consideration. From reliable sources he has carefully culled the most pertinent and entertaining events in the poet's life selected a number of illustrative extracts from his different works drawn largely upon his diary and quoted freely from the opinions of Moore's commentators. All these are not arranged under so many different heads but are informally introduced whenever occasion offers and chronological order requires. By this method the reader is enabled to follow the poet's life step by step from the early days of his Dublin schooling up to the climacteric of his social and literary success and down to the tenderly pitiful scenes of his death-bed to note his labors, read the verses which gained him his praises and the censures of his critics.

"The Experiences of a Barrister and Confessions of an Attorney" by Samuel Warren, author of "Ten Thousand a Year," is received—Estes & Lauriat Boston publishers. Ten Thousand a Year was an exceedingly popular novel years ago and still finds a steady class of readers who have almost made it a classic. Nothing that the author has published since has sustained the reputation he made by his first book though almost all his works bear evidence of the same dramatic faculty and fascinating style. This last book is a collection of short tales founded upon singular exciting or tragic incidents in the practice of a London barrister early in the century. Some of them are a severe reflection upon the bloody penal code and crude justice of the last Georges. All in all [illegible] them are entertaining, and some of them [illegible] [illegible] cruelly lamented. Nearly all of the stories are mere sketches.

Samuel Lover: a Biographical Sketch by A J Symington also published by Harpers is a charming little book. The author had excellent material and made very effective use of it. He has inserted many of the most humorous and attractive of Lover's productions in prose and verse with enough text to give connection and harmony and to supply all the biographical information about the subject wanted by the general reader. The book is sure of wide recognition. Lover was an inimitable and original humorist and at the same time a literary artist of the first class.

Mr Sheldon Amos, an English barrister has printed a treatise on "Political and Legal Remedies for War." The discussion is curious and at the same time able. The method is severely logical. Mr Amos [illegible] a pre-eminent moralist [illegible] his head and [illegible] [illegible] all [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the subject [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] could possibly be [illegible] he can [illegible] [illegible] the

Three [illegible] [illegible] Amos [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] W [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

He treats of the Causes of Modern European Wars; Chapter III of Small Limited Remedies for War; Chapter IV of Legal Remedies for War.

Mr Amos has a smooth and flowing style and is [illegible] to be [illegible] [illegible] of his [illegible] We cannot better illustrate his manner than by the quotation [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Speaking of the economical [illegible] in me [illegible] [illegible] of preventing war he says:

The [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] wealth [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] variety [illegible] and in which they are still regarded in only partially civilized communities. It is not confined to purely mercantile matters. In every field of activity and interest it translates rivalries into co-operative labors and jealous [illegible] [illegible] into grateful and sympathetic allies. It has manifold direct influences on social life as between the citizens of different states. Not only does the stimulus given to trade directly promote and endlessly multiply association of all sorts but one sort of association always produces another and constant familiarity begets friendliness and banishes suspicion and vague dislike. It thus may be expected that the universality of free trade will have consequences to the relations between the citizens—and ultimately the governments—of different states of a kind wholly new and incalculable.

The doctrine of the equality of states as a cause of war is thus considered:

The abstract doctrine that "all states are equal" goes a very little way, of itself, in solving the political problems of international life and preventing the sort of quibbles and evasions which the interpretation of the doctrine itself must needs evolve and which may be and has been the fruitful source of overbearing evil. The difficulties in the way of solving purely legal questions of the sort above described as arising between states are inherently great.

The chapter on standing armies considers the subject not only in its broad aspects but in detail, giving the terms and manner of enlistment in the principal European countries and discussing the merits and defects of the various systems.

Mr Amos' book is suggestive in the best sense of that much abused term. Few will rise from the reading of it without larger views of the laws of war.

The above books may all be had of A. L. Bancroft & Co. Market street, San Francisco.

That much attention has been paid of late years to the rearing and improvement of superior breeds of cattle under the general name of shorthorns, both in the United States and Europe, is of course known to all. Many of the British gentry and noblemen of prominence now engaged in rearing these fine cattle have largely recruited their herds by importations from America, and are still buyers in the American market. The most important sale of shorthorns that ever took place in the United Kingdom was made recently at Underley in Westmoreland. The number sold was seventy four and the proceeds of the sale aggregated over $55 000. The queen of the herd was sold to a nobleman for 2000 guineas.

The complete return from Columbia county shows a republican majority of 84. This for that little county is an extraordinary gain. It is the first time Columbia county ever gave a republican majority for president. The gain, as compared with June is 105. It is due largely to the intelligent efforts of Mr Geo W Mc Bride, through whose work as an organizer and whose persuasive manner as a speaker not a few democrats were brought into the republican ranks. Work like that done by Mr Mc Bride is not only a credit to himself but an honor to his party.

PATRONIZE
HOME INDUSTRIES!
PIONEER
White Lead.
REASONS WHY IT SHOULD BE PREFERRED TO ALL OTHERS:
First—It is STRICTLY PURE. It is WHITER, is FINER GROUND, is FRESH, has BETTER COVERING POWER is MORE DURABLE and is LOWER PRICED than any foreign or imported brands.
The IMPORTED LEADS are OLD, are DRY and HARD, COVERED WITH SKINS, The OIL IS SOAKED INTO THE WOOD, and a very LARGE QUANTITY OF OIL, which is HIGHER COST than the Lead, MUST BE ADDED to make them fit for use, and thus making it cost, at even market prices, at least 10 per cent. more than the PIONEER.
Second—The PIONEER LEAD is strictly a HOME MANUFACTURE. EVERY DOLLAR SPENT IN ITS MANUFACTURE IS DISTRIBUTED ON THIS COAST to the MINERS, SMELTERS and REFINERS, MECHANICS, FARMERS AND LABORERS.
The LEAD ORE is mined on this coast.
The PIG LEAD is smelted and refined on this coast.
The POTS, MACHINERY and other appliances are made on this coast.
The MECHANICS and LABORERS are our own population.
The SEED from which the OIL is extracted is GROWN on this coast
The OIL is MANUFACTURED on this coast by the PACIFIC OIL WORKS, and of a quality superior to any made elsewhere. GUARANTEED PURE and FREE from ADULTERATION with cotton seed, mustard seed and Fish Oil, SO COMMON with ALL THE EASTERN OILS IMPORTED.
The manufacture of the PIONEER WHITE LEAD EMPLOYS constantly ONE HUNDRED MEN.
The manufacture of the Oil by the PACIFIC OIL WORKS EMPLOYS constantly FIFTY MEN.
THE MINING, SMELTING, REFINING, FOUNDRIES, MACHINE & IRON WORKS, POTTERIES, FARMERS and other dependencies, EMPLOY, in addition, an ARMY OF MEN, all CONSUMERS, contributing to each other's welfare.
The FOREIGN or IMPORTED BRANDS of Lead and Oil CONTRIBUTE NOTHING to the WELFARE or PROSPERITY of THIS COMMUNITY; on the contrary, the PATRONAGE OF THEM results in the RETIREMENT from the State of YOUR CAPITAL and DEPRIVES THE MANY classes aforementioned of SUPPORT.
Every dollar spent for HOME MANUFACTURES, and one so essentially a home manufacture as the PIONEER WHITE LEAD, ADDS to the DEVELOPMENT and WEALTH of the COAST, and is a PUBLIC GOOD.
SECURE GOOD QUALITY.

THE NILE.

It flows through old hushed Egypt and its sands,
Like some grave mighty thought threading a dream.
And times and things, as in that vision, seem
Keeping along it their eternal stands —
Caves, pillars, pyramids, the shepherd bands
That roamed through the young world, the glory extreme
Of high Sesostris, and that southern beam,
The laughing queen that caught the world's great hands.
Then comes a mightier silence, stern and strong,
As of a world left empty of its throng
And the void weighs on us; and then we wake,
And hear the fruitful stream lapsing along
'Twixt villages, and think how we shall take
Our own calm journey on for human sake.

LEIGH HUNT.

THE MARBLE FAUN OF PRAXITELES.

[M. E. [illegible]]

Thou Faun, between thee and us that move apart
From all the ways of mortality that reels
With the wild fullness of its life, that feels
Each throb and quiver of the wounding heart.
There is no care or shadow on that brow,
Nor long slow-breathing years with dull sure tooth;
Thou still remainest to us even as now
The perfect type of ever-joyous youth.
Are we the fools of that which still deceives
Idolaters of open-lidded dreams?
I know not. But we gaze until we hear
Pipings on reeds, and shady sounds of streams,
Laughter as if of gods asleep, and clear
Soft sympathetic symphonies of leaves.

TOO MUCH PROSPERITY.

An Old Time Negro's Opinion of Himself and His Kind.

[From the Little Rock Gazette.]

"Dar's no user talkin' 'bout de fack," said old Anderson. "A ole time nigger can't stan' prosperity. When prosperity comes inter de house, de man's wife miscalculates de distance 'twixt corn bread and Sunday clothes."

"What has gone wrong with you, Anderson?" asked a bystander.

"Is tuint ole age by hitself. I can tell yer. Some mighty disgreeable facks hab crawled inter my life ob late. I dozen't like ter go aroun' paradin' my 'fections, but ef yer zires hit, I kin gin yer der pints."

"Go ahead."

"I married a good 'oman. She was de hardest workenist 'oman I eber seed. She'd get up at all times ob night an' chop wood an' feetch water. She didn't care to go to church. All she wanted was plenty ob work, an' I tells yer, I neber seed de time dat de 'oman couldn't git work enough to broke down a man. I'd go ter church regular an' do my prayin'. When I'd go home my wife would hab biled cabbage for me ter eat, and I'd eat 'em, too. Seberal weeks ago a young buck nigger ob a preacher cum ter de neighborhood. He preached putty well. He could make the people shout wheder da wanted ter or not. All dis is a big thing in faber ob a 'cullud preacher, yer know. Well, I 'vited der preacher roun' ter my house. My wife wuz kinder backward like, an' wen I interjuced her ter de preacher she wiped her face on her apron an' run out ter chop wood. She waz powerful bashful, an' at de table I felt ashamed ob de 'oman. Purty soon, howsdiber, she 'gun ter talk, an' fore de preacher lef she got so well 'quainted wif him dat she 'sisted on his comin' agin. He did cum agin an' agin. Finally my wife 'gin ter stop choppin' wood. She wanted a new dress—one ob dese heah red striped dresses. We wuz pretty prosperous an' could stan' hit. After a while she wanted a carpet fur de flo'. I didn't see no rest till I got hit. De preacher come ebery day. I soon seed dat my business ob whitewashin' was too presperous, fur my house 'tracted de preacher like one ob dese heah candle flies flyin' roun' de light. Wal, yisterd'y mornin' my wife run away wid de preacher. Da tuck up de carpet an' den stole de stove. Dey stole de knives an' forks an' eberything dey could get dar han's on. I followed 'em an' cotched up wid 'em. De preacher hit me wid a chunk, an' my wife flung a rock at me; den I turned back. I doan' want no moah wimin an' preachers. Ez long ez a culled 'oman chops wood and fetches water, she's all right, but when she flings down de wood an' pours out de water, den look out. Dat's what makes me say what I do, dat a ole time nigger can't stan' prosperity."

"If you were to go to heaven, Uncle Anderson, and find the preacher there, what would you do?"

The old man studied a while and remarked: "I dean know nothin bout de laws ob de place, but ef dey ain't any stricter dar den in Arkansaw, I'd gib him a diff ober de head wid my harp dat would make de city ob de new Jerusalem soun' like dar was a fire alarm."

MR. FAWCETT ON CRAMMING.

He Thinks Students "Read too Much and Think too Little."

Artificial cramming being the besetting sin of American education, some remarks recently made by the English postmaster general, blind Mr. Fawcett, can be studied most profitably by parents and teachers. "Too much reading and not enough thought," was his exclamation, after dwelling upon the evil effects of attempting to cram the mind with more than it can hold. He did not think it would be fair to throw the entire responsibility of this on teachers. Their better judgment was often controlled by the parents, who wished their children to be taught an unlimited number of things in a very limited period. If parents would let their children remain longer at school, and be taught a few subjects more thoroughly, the result would be generally very much more satisfactory. The idea of valuing knowledge only for its money's worth in after life was to be guarded against. The chief object was to train the mind. Very often what was learned at school was of no practical value afterward, and yet it formed a valuable course of mental training. He could say this from his own experience with regard to the study of mathematics. The best test of the skill of a teacher was the extent to which he was able to discover what was the best subject to develop the faculty of each individual pupil. Nothing could be a greater mistake than for a young man who had gained a little more education than his father to leave his handicraft to seek employment as a clerk. Such a course was doubtless sometimes taken in the following of an idea that his own position would be improved; but if society could be fairly held responsible for such folly he was afraid it would have to answer for thousands being encouraged to seek employment where that employment was most difficult to be obtained.

KEMPER COUNTY DEMOCRATS.

"If They Fail Now, There Will Never be Another Democratic Nomination."

(Dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. Mrs. Chisholm has received a letter from a friend in Mississippi, dated October 16. The following are extracts: "You must give me a moment of your attention while I tell you of my amusement just now in looking on at the democracy. Since the apparent disaster of the republicans in Maine a few weeks ago, the democrats here have been very buoyant and confident and anticipated victory positively in Indiana and very probably in Ohio, but since the election in those states they look forlorn indeed. They have no further hope in the presidential contest, and really, I think they see the sword hanging over the head of the democratic congress. Their appearance is that of complete despondency. One of them, the president of a Hancock club, remarked, in reply to my question as to how he liked the Indiana news, 'Well, they have deceived us. I have very little hope now, and if we are [illegible] this time there will never be another [illegible] nomination.'

Really, I believe that [illegible] as the appearance [illegible] I believe that I can discover with a [illegible] to rejoicing at the prospect. [illegible] Mississippi we have no excitement at all. One would almost forget that a great national election was approaching, if he were not to read the papers. Republicans have no showing here, and the democrats are not able to get [illegible]

[illegible] respectable [illegible] and that [illegible]

The Democrats and the Amendments.

From the Meridian Miss. Mercury.

The democrats in [illegible] It is an awkward place for a candidate to ride [illegible] If we honestly believed reconstruction the summum bonum of [illegible] statesmanship, other things being equal, we should vote for the republican candidate. Therein lies the secret of Tuesday's disaster. The northern democrats have permitted the northern masses to be taught that reconstruction is perfect and that all of its provisions are sacred as the bible is. Northern democrats themselves have too much imbibed such ideas. They can soundly abuse the carpet baggers, who flourished for a season under reconstruction, but have all the time been too lenient with the monstrosities of legislation which made such villainies possible. A theory results that their disasters have come of their cowardice or lack of genuine democratic principles. Blessings come often in disguise, and if the disaster of Tuesday portend democratic defeat in November, it portends also another four years of the "solid south." It is too soon yet for the solidity of the south to be broken.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

(SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5. An easterly storm has prevented any business at the wharves of California vessels and as a consequence the market is rather dull. In fact there is not as much life to the market as was anticipated there would be, even with only one vessel on berth, and prospects are, that outside of a few specialties the remainder of the season will be quiet. This may be attributed partly to the fact that steamers have found it to their advantage to make lower rates for certain classes of freight, and also that shippers are not anxious to forward any amount of goods by sail, as they are promised very moderate rates by the new overland route via Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and Southern Pacific roads, and they are quietly waiting until that route is opened, which will be about the first of January next.

Rates for the time being are unchanged, and may continue so; still, with the addition of another ship on berth next week, it is possible that there may be a little weakening. Tonnage is still in good supply, and no doubt all California lines will secure all they want. Overland freights continue to hold on in spite of the lateness of the season. Shipments for the past week include 600 kegs pickled fish, 215 cases canned goods, 250 boxes soap, 50 cases baking powder, 702 boxes raisins, 500 bbls currants, 300 bbls whisky, 820 cases lye, 1715 pkgs tobacco, 56 tubs and 39 firkins butter, 50 cases matches, 100 cases milk, 75 cases cocoanut, and 1224 bars steel rails.

Markets show a trifle more activity.

Wheat—Quiet and steady.

Barley—Less active, but firm at the late advance.

Pork—Better demand and steady.

Lard—2½c easier and more active.

Coffee—Dull at [illegible] easier.

Refined Sugars—Moderate demand.

Hides—More active and very firm.

Turpentine—Active and ¼c higher.

Petroleum—Unchanged.

SAN FRANCISCO FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

[SPECIAL TO THE OREGONIAN.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5. There has been considerable improvement in the tone of the market during the week under review, although the amount of business transacted has been small. There are very few vessels in port disengaged and holders are firm in their views notwithstanding that quite a large fleet is fully due, which causes exporters to act with great caution. Public dispatches from Liverpool quote the wheat market strong at an advance which has enabled holders of wheat to raise the price somewhat. Private cables do not fully confirm this, and exporters are holding back apparently being in a position to dictate their own terms and are not particularly anxious to secure wheat at current rates. At the close there is some inquiry in this market and little disposition on the part of holders to make concessions. The latest charter reported is British ship Old Kensington, 1777 tons, wheat to Cork, U. K., £3, prior to arrival.

Philadelphia Wool Market.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 5.—Wool improved demand and higher. Oregon fine 30@35c, medium 34@36, coarse 29@32c, New Mexican and Colorado fine 18@28c, medium 28@30c, coarse 20@23.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Nov. 5.—Wool active and prices advanced; sales upward of thirty-one million pounds. Medium territory 20@35c, eastern Oregon 30c, Cal. 25@37c for spring, 16@22c for fall.

Gold and Stock Company's Reports.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.

Receipts—32,500 ctls wheat, including 15,000 ctls aboard ship, 8500 qr sks flour, 1400 sks potatoes, 30 doz eggs.

Charters—Br ship Old Kensington, wheat, for Cork, U. K., 60s; prior arrival.

Butter and eggs—Market shows no feature of striking interest. We quote as before.

Hops.—Market quiet. There is a demand for British Columbia at low prices.

Wool.—The market is active owing to eastern orders. The grades of wool most wanted is choice northern counties and mountain free wool. Quote 23½ to 25½c and 17 to 19c per lb. Stocks, Eastern Oregon estimated to be 2500 bales.

Grapes.—Boxes—Market is not so weak, quote 60 to 75c.

Pears.—Various kinds, supplies are light, quote $1 to 2 50.

Apples.—Steady with prices in buyers favor, Spitzenberg and Bells [illegible] to $1.

Cala. Limes $10@12.

Dried fruit—Quiet, with prices against sellers, quotations unchanged.

Lemons. Mexican, $10, limes, Sicily, $16@17.

Wheat. Market quiet, prices declining owing to foreign advices. 400 tons ch Cal. shipping sold today $1 50; doubtful if sale could be duplicated; quotations unchanged.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast,

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

such as SPERMATORRHEA or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Disease, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Disease of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for [illegible].

Sportsmen and Tourists.

THE UPPER CASCADES AND VICINITY AT the present season offers the finest inducements of perhaps any locality within a radius of 200 miles of Portland. Lake, brook and mountain trout await the disciples of the "gentle art," while the followers of Nimrod can foot with the fleet-footed deer and troublesome cougar to their heart's content, whilst deer are not unknown.

An elegant and comfortable hotel (The Borthwick House) is now established, with furnished rooms and reliable guides, dogs, boats, guns, and everything necessary for an outfit, can be had within ten minutes.

The glorious mountain scenery, rugged river views, and enormous government works alone, will amply repay a visit.
